WELCOME TO THE CENTENNIAL EDITION OF THE TULANE JAMBALAYA. AFTER AN EIGHT YEAR HIATUS WE ARE PROUD TO BE BACK TO CHRONICLE THE DEVELOPMENT OF TULANE UNIVERSITY. IN THE FOLLOWING PAGES, WE HOPE TO CAPTURE JUST A LITTLE OF THE RICH TAPESTRY OF OUR CAMPUS, AND HELP YOU, THE STUDENT, LOOK BACK ON TULANE WITH A FOND MEMORY OF THE TIME YOU SPENT HERE.

THE REST OF THIS OPENING IS DEDICATED COVER IMAGES OF EARLIER JAMBALAYAS. WE HOPE THAT YOU WILL ENJOY THESE PIECES OF COVER ART, AND APPRECIATE THE EVOLUTION OF THE JAMBALAYA TO ITS PRESENT FORM.

1939 FEATURES SECTION

The features divider, which marks this edition's Student Life section, is from the 1939 yearbook. The 1939 issue of the Jambalaya seems to be the most indicative of the artistic decorating style of the time. Each section divider within this edition was designed with the same artistic theme presenting cartoonish women in high heels, and often portrayed as wealthy. The men portrayed in this edition were very broad shouldered and well dressed, reminding the writer of Dick Tracy comic strips.

The engraved cover of the 1939 edition of the Jambalaya is one of the most creative and detailed covers of any Jambalaya to date. Presented in the Opening section, the 1939 edition depicts two young people walking away from the stylized Tulane University.

CONSTRUCTION

It has pervaded campus this year - everyone has been incurred its wrath at some point. Below is just a glimpse of what campus was like this year.

ON-CAMPUS LIVING

Dorms, they invoke a strange feeling of reminiscence. Living in a building filled with other college students is an experience like no other.

There are 12 dorms on campus. The dorms classified for freshman are Butler Hall, for honors students, Warren Hall, J.L. Hall, for women only, and Monroe Hall. Paterson House is substance-free, shared between freshman and upperclassmen, as is Phelps Hall. Warren Hall is also mixed between classes but its residents are only women. Sharp Hall is freshman and graduate students while Rosen Hall is only graduate students. Aron residences, Irby Hall and Mayer Residences are for upper classmen.

Orientation Coordinators for Sharp Hall welcome freshmen and graduate students with friendly faces.

CAMPUS DINING

Living in an international city like New Orleans has its perks, and the food choices here are definitely some of the best. All around Tulane's campus there are great eating opportunities, fine dining and fast food alike. Muffalettas and po-boys, crawfish and barbeque shrimp, a mix of French, Italian and Asian cuisines-- our adoptive home has one of the most distinct palettes in America.

On campus, we have just as much variety. The staple of a Tulane students diet is Bruff commons, whose theme nights are legendary and omelets delicious. It serves typical college staples with a distinct 'Nawlins' flair, and makes you happy to be away nearly as often as you wish for Mom's cooking. It has also branched out to include the McAlister Market, a vendor of fine cereals for and condoms, whenever you need either.

Le Gourmet, The Drawing Board and the two PJ's Coffee locations are other on-campus faves, each offering their strong menus of high-class, deli and java fares, respectively. And one can't overlook the food court in the Pavilion for quick and tasty eats when you need something between classes.

The pizza line, a popular attraction at Bruff, is being restocked by a Bruff cook.

THE PAVILION

When students returned for second semester, the scheduled construction of the New UC brought changes to where everyone ate, worked and hung out. Student organizations scattered around campus, but the UC food court and the Campus Bookstore found new homes in the Pavilion at Bruff.

Located behind Bruff, a new semi-permanent structure, popularly called the Bubble, now houses new food stands and some familiar favorites. Taco Bell, Sushi, Freshens and Classic Entrees is joined by Noodles, Etc., Far East Fusions, a patissier and the ever popular Einstein Bros. Bagels. Though it may not have the same feel as the old UC, the new food court definitely fills the void created by typical cafeteria dining.

Some of the eateries formerly found in the UC have been downsized, but the late-night Rathskeller, perhaps the most missed aspect of the Tulane dining experience, has been replaced by the Big Easy Café. It's better lit and has less seating, but still hits the spot at 3 in the morning.

Also relocated to the Bubble is the Tulane Bookstore, an absolute necessity for everyone at least twice a year. It has retained its usual merchandise and staff, though those once familiar with the layout might be a little less at home. The one-stop shopping of the Pavilion certainly takes care of the common needs of all students at Tulane—food and books—in a functional way, and makes campus life a little bit easier, even without our UC.

THE REILY STUDENT RECREATION CENTER

The Reily Student Recreation Center was built in 1989 as a result of the efforts and interests of the Tulane student body. In 1986 students passed a referendum to assess themselves sees for the construction and maintenance of this beautiful facility, with 150,000 square feet of activity space and a variety of recreational programs to challenge students.

The Reily Center is home to the Department of Campus Recreation. The department is under the Division of Student Affairs. The department staff is charged with facility management and recreational programming to meet the needs of Tulane students, faculty and staff. Programming opportunities include intramural sports, club sports, instructional programs, fitness and Wellness programs and special events.

Despite the availability of to-of-the-line weight machines, some students prefer to stick to good, old fashioned crunches on the aerobics mats.

HOWARD - TILTON LIBRARY

The Howard-Tilton Memorial Library is another of our campus' key institutions. Late-night term papers would never be completed without its staggering array of 2.2 million volumes and 14,000 periodicals. It's also a great place for studying and meeting friends, even if you've gotten through your work for the week.

Some of the lesser-known libraries, like the Rare Books and Special Collections in Jones Hall and the Law and Architecture Libraries, are also instrumental to getting students degrees on time. Within Jones Hall alone, there are hidden treasures of rare science fiction, children's books and extremely well-preserved and protected medieval texts. In a hidden vault, location undisclosed, we even have several pages of an original Guttenburg Bible.

The main Howard-Tilton stacks, located on Newcomb Place, are also undergoing extensive re-organization, making finding what you need a little bit worse before it gets better. Students are now confronted with the "Off-site Depository." Like most other things this year, change means hassle.

HOMECOMING

OutKast and MTV shake up Homecoming

As part of MTV's involvement in this year's Homecoming festivities, hip-hop duo OutKast performed during the half-time show when Tulane hosted the Houston Cougars at Tad Gormley Stadium.

According to Steve Walsh, director of marketing for the athletics department, "we told [MTV] what our Homecoming event was all about and they were excited and wanted to be a part of it." As a result, programming did not focus solely on college football, but also featured various aspects of student life at Tulane.

To create more of a concert atmosphere, 1,000 students rushed the field during the half-time performance.

Athletics department officials hoped OutKast's performance would greatly increase attendance for the Homecoming game. "We hope that it just pushes it through the roof. We're hoping that Saturday's game is a sellout and that's ultimately what we're striving for," Walsh said.

With the number one selling album in the nation, Speakerboxxx/The Love Below, and the number one music video on MTV's TRL, "Hey Ya!," OutKast is currently the buzz of the music industry. The band is best known for hits such as "Rosa Parks," "B.O.B.," "Ms. Jackson," and their current radio success.

Walsh is enthusiastic about the group's performance. "The affinity with a group like OutKast coming in, I think our students connect with a group like that and can really excited about such an event," he said.

MTV's involvement at Tulane's Homecoming is not limited to merely the OutKast performance, but also encompasses a range of other activities involving network hosts, including Jessica Simpson and Nick Lachey.

HALLOWEEN

Halloween in New Orleans is quite a scene for natives to Louisiana, students, and any tourists who venture here to celebrate. Bourbon St. bustling with traffic as thick as that during Mardi Gras, Tulane students often opt to venture to Frenchman St. for their Halloween celebrations. Freshman Jessica Fenton was advised there for her first Halloween in the city and remembers it fondly: "Frenchman St. was crowded but it was still really fun. My friends and I carried our drinks down the street because the bars were packed but we had a great time. I also really loved how cool the parade was." More claustrophobic types chose to attend friend's parties or uptown bars. This year's warm weather also allowed for more adventurous costume ideas as exhibited in these photos.

MS. PAUL TULANE

The Ms. Paul Tulane/Mr. Sophie Newcomb drag show is an annual fund raiser sponsored Mortarboard, Newcomb College's senior honor society. From professional drag kings to frat boys in dresses, all interested students in the University have the chance to bend their genders without ridicule for one glittering night out of the year. Proceeds from the year's show benefited the New Orleans /AIDS Task Force.

MARDI GRAS

Mardi Gras It is the best time of year to be at Tulane (or worst, depending on how you look at it). Sure Bruff shuts down and the campus population increases by 300 percent, but most Tulane students still love Mardi Gras. It is not only a chance to go wild but also to participate directly in the traditions and culture of New Orleans.

Mardi Gras was brought to New Orleans by the French colonists in the earliest years of the city. However, the street celebrations and balls did not become common until the late 18th century. Organized parades began in the middle of the 19th century with the krewes of Comus and Rex. The word "krewe" itself was introduced by the first Mardi Gras parade, Comus, who took the title "crew" from John Milton's Comus, in which he refers to his band of followers as his "crew." They changed the first letter to a 'k' to make it seem as though the term seem more ancient. However, Professor Felipe Smith of the Tulane English Department is quick to point out that there is much more to the history of Carnival than just the European parades. He says that "Afro-Caribbean traditions of dance, costuming and processions had as much or more to do with the style and nature of the carnival as did the European customs."

The parades have now become the city's most famous and popular events. Tulane students, tourists, and locals all come to the parades to collect "throws" such as beads, doubloons, and other special items. Originally, these trinkets were thrown as a part of the fantasy of royalty-- a fantasy central to the parades; they mimicked the aristocrats who threw coins to the commoners during the Middle Ages. Now every Mardi Gras people look forward to the new types of throws that will be used-- a tradition that started about a century ago when krewes began developing new throws to gain distinction over the other parades.

Of course, most people do not think about this rich history when celebrating Mardi Gras. For Tulane students, Mardi Gras is all about letting loose and having fun. But just remember that without this city's history and wonderful traditions, we would not get a week off of school to grab beads and go wild.

Krewe D'etat took liberties with Tulane football.

Krewe D'etat rolled on Friday, February 20 at 6:30 in the evening. This years theme was "Malice in Wonderland."

Zulu rolled on Mardi Gras morning at 8:30.

The Zulu coconut, or "Golden Nugget," is without rival in its claim to "most prized catch" of Carnival. The tradition is thought to have begun in 1910 (the second year that the Zulu Social Aid and Pleasure Club put on a parade), and at that time the coconuts were thrown out in their natural hairy state. After awhile, someone had the brilliant idea to paint them ' hence the modern Zulu coconut, a cherished N.O. tradition. This year's theme is "Zulu and All the Characters We Know," which is a little cryptic but sure to make for the best parade of Mardi Gras nonetheless.

GETTING AROUND IN THE BIG EASY

With the plethora of activities happening in New Orleans, getting around is a must. Students enjoy a variety of transportation options.

Cars: There are all kinds of cool cars in New Orleans. BMWs, Mercedes, cars painted with "Red Bull" logos, hybrids, mini coopers. Pros: Going wherever you want to go on your own schedule Cons: Gas prices, pollution, traffic congestion, parking, drunk people who put broken glass bottles underneath your tires as a joke. Truly, driving a car in New Orleans can be daunting, even for the most experienced driver.

Streetcars: New Orleans has two streetcar (not trolley!) lines, the Riverfront line downtown and the St. Charles line (world's oldest, constructed over 150 years ago), which glides along the whole of St. Charles; provide a direct and delightful route to the French quarter or the riverside. Pros: Not only are streetcars convenient, they are historic. People new to the city claim they feel like they are on a movie set when riding on the streetcar lines. Cons: Not very efficient. Plan on waiting at the stop for up to an hour if you are taking the streetcar late at night, and after securing a streetcar, plans on stopping frequently.

Buses: New Orleans city buses are pretty nice. There are many of different lines, and if you are familiar with the routes, you can get just about anywhere in the city. Pros: Buses are fast, weather protected (read: air-conditioned) and have cushioned seats. Cons: If you don't know the routes, you can end up lost in a not so nice part of town very far from the Tulane campus.

Walk/Bike/Hop/Skip/Jump/etc.: Hands down, the best way to experience the city is on your own two feet. It gives you a chance to enjoy New Orleans' historic atmosphere by forcing you to take things at a slower pace Pros: Great exercise, the price is right Cons: Flat tires on bikes, not favorable for long distances

NEW ORLEANS ARCHITECTURE

The most crucial factor in the formation of New Orleans is its location near the mouth of the Mississippi River. Until the establishment of a national railroad system in the mid 19th century, water was the most efficient means to transport goods. The entire North American interior, from the Appalachians to the Rockies, is drained by the Mississippi River, and as the site that controlled the flow of people and goods; New Orleans was poised to control the wealth of the continent. This is not surprising that international powers competed heavily for control of the city.

For its first forty-five years the city of New Orleans was a French colonial city and, to this day, New Orleans continues to be associated with French New World culture. However, despite the entrenchment of French culture in language and population the French left little impact on the architecture of New Orleans. Due to several fires and hurricanes, the Spanish had to rebuild most of the old city (the area now known as the French Quarter) in the late 18th century. The wrought iron balconies that typify the French Quarter are stylistically Spanish. In the early 19th century, France briefly regained control of New Orleans before selling the entire colony of Louisiana to the United States in 1803. At that time did not extend far beyond the French Quarter. The New Orleans the Uptown and Garden District areas is fully American, and most of the houses surrounding Tulane's campus date from the early 20th century.

Another central factor affecting the architecture of New Orleans is the city's socio-economic history. As the city that benefited most from the cotton trade and the lingering of slavery, the aristocracy of New Orleans grew very powerful during the 19th century. This situation is reflected in the distribution of neighborhoods in New Orleans even today, when poverty stricken areas often closely border areas of extreme wealth.

This proximity is a result of the historical need to have slaves and servant's quarters near the homes in which they worked. Since the Second World War, there have been relatively few building projects close to the city center. New businesses in New Orleans tend to use existing structures, and the city center has been relatively resistant to the "Amortization" that has occurred across much of America. Nearby areas such as Metairie and Slidell, however, have been willing hosts to the large retail centers that now dominate community economy. New Orleans' resistance to this change has in many ways been beneficial to the city. The "mom and pop" stores that have become rare in many other communities are a mainstay in New Orleans and only add to the distinctiveness of smaller communities within the city such as Magazine and Maple Streets.

NEW ORLEANS LIFE

Just being in the city itself offers Tulane students unique opportunities not available to many other college students. The French Quarter alone offers a unique chance to observe French-American culture at its finest. The photo in this spread, taken by Amanda Mollo, offer the briefest glimpse of the surroundings of the French Quarter. UPTOWN SCENE

For those that get sick of the beads and boobs but not the booze, the uptown social scene gives students a place to relax and spend time with friends. Maple Street, with its many bars, coffee shops, restaurants, and boutiques, gives students a more typical college town atmosphere in the midst of a major city.

Maple Street's popular hangouts such as Bruno's, Vera Cruz, and T.J. Quills give students a place to escape fall fraternity parties on Broadway while being within walking distance from freshman staple The Boot, voted "most popular morning bar" by students. Only a block away from the Boot, the Palms, formerly known as Waldo's, with its Miami Vice feel gives older students a chance to mix with other local college students and residents.

Open any Tulane student's kitchen cabinet and there may be an entire glass set courtesy of The Bulldog, a popular Wednesday night bar. Afterwards, students may go to Madigan's Ladies' night making any Wednesday a fun time. Whether it's enjoying a "Madras" from Ms. Mae's (known to locals as "The Club") seeing Rebirth Brass Band and other popular music acts at Tipitina's and the Maple Leaf, or eating cheese fries at F&M's, there is a place for everyone uptown.

While visitors may be surprised at the fully grown golden retrievers running around Grits and the Friar Tuck's bouncer wearing a live boa constrictor, it's just another night in the Garden District for Tulannians.

WHY BIGGER IS BETTER

The biggest adjustment of your life. They repeated the compulsory parental remark as I packed the last of my things into my Tulane bound trunk. Indeed, I was embarking the journey to my first year of collegiate life. I couldn't blame them for their concern, but couldn't help to wonder what all the fuss was about. "College will be a blast! What's to fear?" I thought. That's not to say I was without qualms; new friends, new city, new professors, new boys—college would certainly be an adjustment. Still, I could not fathom the degree of my parents' concern.

"The Adjustment" seemed the sole subject of my mother's conversation with her friends—and mere acquaintances. "Yes, she leaves in 12 and a half days." She dropped the phrase vaguely, but her attempted coolness was shot by the inevitable sigh that punctuated the sentence. My father discussed the topic with more fervor, compensating any regret with zealous animation. "We're so excited," he would say. Each day he regaled me with a new fact about the University, or informed me yet of another colleague he had discovered to be alumni of the university. He was obviously pleased, but his enthusiasm was evidently an attempt to assuage his own fears.

While their concern was endearing, it could hardly sway me from anticipation: After four years of careful monitoring, college promised infinite new freedoms. Finally, the choice to stay out past ten, to collect dirty laundry into fuming drifts, to subsist on peanut butter and licorice without ridicule. The beer. In just a few weeks, my friends and I would make great strides toward becoming the nocturnal drunken slobs we always knew we could become!

And then it hit me: despite a fortunate location in a party capital, the revelry would be accompanied by that other part of college? - classes, clubs, chores. Suddenly, my mother's nervous planning and father's constant analysis didn't seem so ridiculous. Dare I say it? My parents were right. College wasn't easy. It wasn't easy to get the laundry done, to find something edible, to write the paper, to go to the party-- and get up the next day to do it all over again.

All right, I'll cut the drama. Since my epiphany about the stresses of responsibilities, I have learned something else. Or rather, relearned it. My inner naïve high school student has reminded me that college is a blast. Granted, this is far from profound (but remember this is my high school self speaking); There are never going to be four years like these again. Never again will we live in this fuzzy bubble filled with intelligent, raucous, spontaneous, artistic, hormonal, athletic, off-the-charts-absolutely-positively vibrant people. So forget the laundry and the exams and the nasty food. Yeah, we're adjusting—and we're loving it.

The senior's divider comes from the 1932 Jambalaya, whose theme was the life of Paul Tulane, the University's namesake. In this panel, Tulane is at the twilight of his life, and is deciding which charities will benefit in his will.

Tulane was an astute businessman hailing from New Jersey. During his lifetime, he lived in both Princeton and New Orleans, donating vast amounts of money to public and private charities. His original donation of real estate to the administration of higher education in Louisiana was followed by several monetary donations, and a large part of his estate totaling around $82,000,000. This donation established and secured the Tulane Education Fund, partly from which the University gets its name.

1928 CLASSES DIVIDER

The theme for the 1928 yearbook was a romanticized depiction of the American Revolution.

The picture to the left is meant to depict the American colonies bowing in supplication to England. Because past Jambalaya themes tended to move in a chronological order, the actual Revolution, depicted as a duel between two finely dressed men, appears much later in the book.

This divider was chosen based on its visually interesting images as well as its provocative subject matter.

I LOVE NEWCOMB GIRLS

The shirts sold by Newcomb Senate this year boast the slogan "I love Newcomb girls." And rightly so, Newcomb College offers a world of opportunities created to inspire and support women's dreams and accomplishments. The H. Sophie Newcomb Memorial College at Tulane University was established in 1886 and was the first degree-granting women's coordinate college in the nation. As time has progressed, Newcomb College has worked to mold and maintain their mission: to provide the benefits of a women's college set firmly within a major research university.

Newcomb has many programs that offer a multitude of ways for women to get involved. Newcomb Senate is the governmental body that represents the concerns and interests of Newcomb students. This year they worked on fund-raising and creating community service projects. Mortar Board, a national senior honors society, spent the year working with Newcomb Student Programs to plan annual events. They prepared Toast to Newcomb and the Newcomb Leadership Conferences for Girls. Women in Science, a national organization that strives to form a network between peers and faculty interested in the sciences, actively pursued their mission in exploring the sciences and helping the community school systems to build their science programs.

This is just a short list of accomplishments that stemmed from Newcomb programs this year. Newcomb College appreciates that there are several components of a total education and works to provide ways to fulfill them all. To keep this spirit present, the Office of Newcomb Student Programs works with Newcomb women to build organizations and programs that will complement the academic experience in the classroom. Newcomb challenges students to approach leadership from a different perspective, engaging in multifaceted hands-on experiences.

One cannot help but think to oneself, "I love Newcomb girls" because they are the extraordinary and motivated women of the future.

TULANE COLLEGE

In 1851, the newly-chartered undergraduate Collegiate Division of the Medical College of Louisiana enrolled its first freshman class—made up of 14 students—which was taught by seven faculty members. Today, consisting of all 2,200 male undergraduates in the liberal arts, Tulane College is the University's oldest and third-largest undergraduate division. Since 1988, Tulane College has shared the liberal arts and sciences faculty with Newcomb College, but has its own staff of academic advisers based in Robert C. Cudd Hall.

Tulane College has its own senate which reports to USG, and hosts several class dinners each year, as well as the Dean's Colloquium lectures featuring distinguished alumni. Tulane College also has a Big Brother program, pairing freshmen with older students to guide them as they begin their academic journey, which kicks off with a traditional dinner of Popeye's chicken and the giving away of Tabasco T-shirts. Though Tulane and Newcomb share the same Honor Code, they have separate Honor Boards. The Tulane College Honor Board meets in Cudd Hall to investigate violations of the Code. 2004 also marked the first year of Tulane College's new Lupin Visiting Scholar program, which brought former US Poet Laureate Robert Pinsky to campus. To keep its over 18,000 alumni informed, Tulane College publishes the Collegian, a bi-annual newsletter featuring profiles of alumni and students and college news.

Among those 18,000 are a number of especially distinguished former Tulane College students, including pioneering heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey ('30), Pulitzer Prize-winning author John Kennedy Toole ('58), journalist Howard K. Smith ('36), Emmy-nominated television producer, writer, and director Bruce Paltrow ('65), former Congressman from Louisiana and House majority leader Hale Boggs ('35), actor Paul Michael Glazer ('66), best known as Starsky on Starsky and Hutch, former host of Meet the Press Bill Monroe ('42), as well as 10 former Louisiana governors.

SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE

There is truly no better place to study architecture than the city of New Orleans. The rich diversity of French, Spanish, and American cultures offer what no other American city provides. From the French Quarter, to the Garden District, to the plantations on River Road, to modern skyscrapers downtown, students at the School of Architecture have a wealth of architectural gems within their reach.

Tulane University's School of Architecture is one of the few schools in the nation that offer a five-year Masters program. The challenging curriculum culminates in a senior thesis involving research and design during a student's fifth year.

The school houses its own library, woodshop, and computer lab with a print center. Students take courses in design studio, structures, technology, history, and theory. Electives include digital graphics, color and light, and innovations in building materials and methods.

The school provides students with numerous lecture series throughout the year which attract professors from around the country and the world as well local architects.

Although notorious for spending long hours in the studio (the lights in the building are kept on all night long), architecture students balance work and play quite well as many are involved in student government, athletics, and Greek life.

Copy by Kimberly Smith

Critiques are not only required, they allow students to obtain constructive input from professors, which in turn insightfully teaches architects-in-training new ideas and ways to build on their original ones. Brett Nelson, 4th year, presents his project.

What have you done with your studio space?

*Andrew West,
2nd year*

"I put up pictures, hang things from the rafters, and put up cards and funny stuff we find around, but it is mostly architecture stuff--scraps of paper and wood, cardboard and chipboard, tools...it feels like my place because it is where I spend so much time. My friends are all there, too, so that makes it a lot more fun!"

*Marcie Lessard,
2nd year*

"I bring my computer to studio and always have lots of Diet Coke so I can take breaks and talk to friends online and stay awake with all the caffeine."

*Jessica Walker,
2nd year*

"My studio space has a tent built over it and hot pink toilet seat as a window."

*Emma Chammah,
2nd year*

"I put up pictures of things that will inspire me ... My professor wants us to bring 'found objects' ... but we went dumpster diving and found old desk drawers and floppy disks and made a storage unit for drawings out of it."

Documenting your progress and photographing your final product is important in building your portfolio. Art Terry, 4th year, goes in for a close-up of his work.

Precision, patience, and a phenomenal work ethic are traits common to architecture students who spend long hours in the studio. 3rd year, Tony Vanky, is no exception.

The ability to construct a beautiful and accurate model is a vital skill for an architect. Jessica Diaz, 4th year, discusses her project with a friend.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

The Tulane University School of Engineering was established in 1894 and its impact was immediate. Among the graduates of the late 1890's were: Arsene Perrilliat, who constructed the Mississippi River levees from Vicksburg to Baton Rouge; Albert Baldwin Wood, who designed the pumping system that drains the city of New Orleans to this day; and William Monroe White, who helped design and build many of the most important hydroelectric installations in the world, including the one at Niagra Falls. That was only the beginning. For over a century, the Tulane University School of Engineering has consistently produced outstanding graduates at the bachelor's, master's, and doctoral levels; graduates who have assumed leadership roles in industry, business, government, medicine, and education; graduates who have made a difference.

Today, Tulane University ranks among the top research universities in the world, yet its focus is still on producing outstanding graduates. In the Tulane University School of Engineering, undergraduate and graduate students enjoy the personal attention of some of the very best faculty in the world; faculty who are working at the forefront of engineering and computer science in such areas as advanced materials, bioengineering and biotechnology, energy and environment, and information technology and computational science. The rich tradition of excellence, the small student-faculty ratio, the intellectual environment of a highly ranked research university, and the setting in one of America's most unique cities all combine to make the Tulane University School of Engineering a truly exceptional experience.

A. B. FREEMAN SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

The A. B. Freeman School of Business, one of 11 schools and colleges comprising Tulane University, was founded in 1914 by a group of New Orleans business people dedicated to the advancement of management education. Today, the Freeman School is recognized as one America's leading business institutions, consistently ranked among the nation's best by prestigious publications such as Business Week, Forbes and U.S. News & World Report.

The first and only nationally ranked business school in the Gulf South, the Freeman School offers undergraduate and graduate programs including a Bachelor of Science in Management (BSM) program, Masters programs in Finance and in Accounting, a full-time Master of Business Administration program, a part-time Professional MBA program, an accelerated Executive MBA program, and a PhD program in business. The school maintains facilities in New Orleans, Houston and Shanghai. In addition, with international partner institutions, the Freeman Schools offers executive and faculty development programs in Chile, China, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Taiwan and Venezuela.

Housed in a state-of-the-art complex including the newly built Goldring/Woldenberg Hall II, the Freeman School enrolls more than 1,300 full-time students and boasts an outstanding faculty noted for scholarship and teaching excellence in accounting and taxation, finance, information systems, international business, management, marketing, and organizational behavior. Through innovative curricula and offerings such as the nationally acclaimed Burkenroad Reports equities research program, the Levy-Rosenblum Institute for Entrepreneurship and the Goldring Institute of International Business, the Freeman School has built an exceptional reputation for meeting the needs of both students and the business community.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

With campuses Uptown, Elmwood, New Orleans Center (downtown) and Biloxi, Miss.

An ad about University college ends with the phrase, "There is no place like this place ...". And how true that statement is! University College was founded in 1942 to make a Tulane education available to just about everyone. University College has an open admissions policy, low tuition compared to the standard Tulane price and classes scheduled on nights and weekend to accommodate the average student. The average student at University College is not straight out of high school, does not live on campus and generally has been working for a few years. Most of these students are part-time and take classes at one of the various locations around New Orleans after work.

The less common University College student is a full-time student who lives on campus and takes day classes. There are 348 full-time students compared to 1,491 part-time students.

There is a common misconception around Tulane that University College has all the jocks and people who otherwise couldn't get in to Tulane. However, University College offers majors such as paralegal studies, media arts, exercise and sports science and more that no other school offers. University College gives students the opportunity to come back to school, supplement their experience and gain valuable knowledge to get ahead in today's competitive workplace. University College, while the largest college in enrollment numbers, has more of a hands on approach in dealing with students than some of the other colleges at Tulane. The administration and faculty are always around to talk, or help a student out. They know the students by their name most of the time, not just their social security number.

University College has the unique pleasure of being a large college at a wonderful institution while feeling like a small college that truly cares about you.

University College annual Crawfish Boil in the spring is one of the favorite events for all students. The Student Government Association puts the event on and buys over 3,000 pounds of crawfish and ALWAYS runs out!

The ERC Is There to Help With, Well, Just About Everything

Failing physics with velocity and potential energy to spare? Does calculus have you wishing that those grades, too, were imaginary numbers? Is Spanish grammar all Greek to you? The ERC (Educational Resources and Counseling) has got your back. With private tutoring options in numerous entry-level courses, including but not limited to Physics, Math, Biology and any foreign language, underclassmen can rest easy. Hope is not lost with an undergraduate or graduate tutor with the patience of Mother Teresa and the brainpower of Stephen W. Hawking at your side.

Underclassmen are not the only ones to benefit from the grace that is the ERC as it also offers aid in high-level courses including Calculus II and III, Intro to Applied Mathematic, Genetics and the notorious Organic Chemistry! It's not all equations and conjugations either; those with difficulties crunching out that worrisome term paper can find relief at the Writing Workshop where a tutor will spend up to two 30-minute sessions with a student per week. Not too shabby.

The ERC also provides students with learning disabilities the extra help they need. From extended time to untimed testing, the ERC helps students with documented learning disabilities make the grade. For those who suspect that they may have a learning disability, the ERC administers tests that evaluate students for ADD/ADHD, they can refer students to a range of psychoeducational analysts in the area who can test for other learning issues.

If it's not the classes that have you feeling blue, the ERC also provides students with mental health resources. From alcohol and narcotic abuse counseling, dealing with eating disorders, depression, anxiety, academic stress, or abusive relationships, at the ERC, there is someone to provide aid to students. This aid is provided through psychologists, social workers, counselors and supervised graduate students in professional training.

No problems studying, and feeling emotionally stable? The ERC still has more to offer. Students who are having trouble deciding whether they are born zoologists or destined for dentistry can get help selecting a major and/or career by taking a range of different career tests.

This savior of GPAs and mental health is located at the front of the Tulane campus on the first floor of the Mechanical Engineering Building.

I SEE LONDON, I SEE FRANCE ...

Tulane Students Study Abroad In Record Numbers During the 2003-04 Academic Year

Bon Voyage! ¡Buen viaje! Gute Reise! This academic year Tulane students dispersed across the globe in record numbers. Study Abroad programs enjoyed a marked spike in applications following a lull in foreign study interest post-9/11. While Junior Semester Abroad (JSA) remains the more popular of the two foreign study options, Junior Year Abroad (JYA) has increased in popularity this year as well.

Where have these motivated scholars voyaged this academic year? The JSA/JYA diaspora spread the Green Wave over 17 countries in over 20 academic programs. Students elected to experience Carnival first hand in Brazil, enjoy tea and crumpets in jolly ole England and even test the waters in Msida, Malta...Kem heku! In addition to these regularly attended Tulane programs, specially selected Independent Scholars have opted to create their own programs in Dakar, Senegal and Capetown, South Africa.

How are Tulanians enjoying themselves? Quite well, it seems, given the glowing reports of recently returned study abroad students. Newcomb senior Jordana Berres-Paul, who completed her junior year abroad in Spain during the 2002-03 academic year, remarks that her year in Spain offered her an "opportunity to get to know a major metropolitan city very well," as well as "the chance to make life-long spanish friends." Berres-Paul, like most Tulane students who venture to a new country, opted to immerse herself in the culture of Spain by living together with native Spaniards who attend local universities.

Dr. Alice Gail Bier, the Executive Director for the Center of International Studies cites that this immersive approach to study abroad provides students with a broadened world-perspective that prepares graduates for their future as citizens of a global environment. "Graduating students will be challenged to grasp the meaning of world events, not from the U.S. point of view, but from the viewpoints of persons who live in very different cultures and in other countries." He says, "Graduates will be taking responsibility for themselves and for those that follow in their footsteps to find solutions to world issues such as environmental quality, peace, sufficient food supply to needy nations, access to education for all, and tolerance for religious, political and cultural differences. Cultural immersion through study abroad is perhaps the single most important experience a student can have during the university years to prepare for this challenge as it provides graduates with the tools to help understand and work effectively within the global environment in which they will live."

Exam Induced Stress Syndrome:

What You've Always Wanted To Know But Were Too Embarrassed To Ask

Ah, it's the end of November and you can all but taste those sweet Thanksgiving yams. You're ready for the break: laundry bags, check. Photos of wild New Orleans night-life to lord over friends, check. Bottle of hot sauce for Pops, check. Textbooks...check? That's right kids, it ain't over till it's over. Unfortunately for Tulane undergrads, the Thanksgiving holiday means cram-time as much as it does family time. All efforts are rewarded with a vacation for the winter holidays, but it is not until that the final bluebook has been handed forward that Tullanians sing those carols with genuine enthusiasm. The same torture recommences at the end of the Spring semester: with New Orleans blazing once again, students are ready to throw in the towel—or throw it on the quad for a tan. But alas, students cannot break out the bikinis until the final round of academic purgatory.

What's a kid to do? How long can one wait out the hell that is exam period before total meltdown? Can one survive finals week before total meltdown? The facts point to yes; Tulane is in its 151st year and has yet to see an exam-induced human combustion. There is, however what one might call Final Exam Induced Stress Syndrome, a disorder whose symptoms include the following:

1. Catatonia. You are unable to interact with the living world because from the looks of it, you're not alive! Your heart may be beating, but those black under-eye circles and pallid skin would suggest that you've been mingling with an academic vampire.

2. Nutritional disorder: This symptom forks into two camps: the Compulsive Crap Horders (CCHs) and the Ghandian Food Denouncers (GFDs). In the opinion of the first group, Dorritos=brainpower², which inevitably translates into exam period=body weight². The latter group shuns food as an entity insupportable by stress and they are frequently known as nail-biting-gum-chewers.

3. Caffeine Biomagnification: If you didn't know what Red Bull tasted like before exams, you've probably learned by now. One can beckons another until you are convinced that indeed, you do have wings.

4. Unfounded Optimism: "Organic Chem, Organic shmem! Six Flags!" Buried in a flurry of note cards, highlighted course packets and study outlines, the student enters into a phase of unreasonable euphoria. This symptom is usually associated with the later phase of exam period, and the common mantra becomes "I know this" despite the fact that one may have studied for all of 5 solid minutes. This optimism should not be confused with healthy self-confidence; unfortunately, illusions of grandeur do not garner A's. One can only wish...

5. Disordered Sleep Patterns: Insomnia is the most prevalent symptom on the list; it is doubtful that there has ever been a final paper completed before 4am. The 24/7 life style is of course balanced by those of us who live by an opposite motto of, "when the going gets tough, I go to sleep."

This list of symptoms is admittedly abridged as this author is suffering from a less acute version of the FEISS called Mid-Term Induced Stress Syndrome (MTISS). Despite this, it is personally helpful to keep in mind that while Stress Syndromes are reoccurring, they are treatable with post-examination remedies including mom's home cooking, sleeping past noon and nighttime festivities. Side effects may occur...

1920 ATHLETICS DIVIDER

This divider is from the 1920 athletics section. The figures within the letters depict some of the activities that were available to students at that time. The two most popular sports were basketball and football, which were reserved for men only. Freshmen who attended these sporting events were required to wear green beanies to signify their class standing, and were not permitted into the stadium without them.

Although the students at Newcomb College did not compete with other colleges in athletics, there were intramural women's sports. Each class had its own basketball, volleyball, and hockey teams. There were also variations of basketball played on campus, the most notable of which was Newcomb Ball, which, not surprisingly was developed at Newcomb College by Miss Clara Baer, who was the head of Newcomb Athletics for a number of years.

FOOTBALL

Tulane's football team was ready for action when they stepped out onto the field September 1, 2003 to play against Texas Christian University. After an intense summer of practices and the previous season's Hawaii Bowl success, head coach Chris Scelfo announced, "We are ready to play a football game."

The outlook for the season was a fairly positive one, with senior players like J.P. Losman, Roydell Williams, and Mewelde Moore expected to step into the spotlight with their athletic talents.

The team ended with a 5-7 record, which unfortunately was not enough to send them to a bowl game. Several injuries to key players, the defensive line in particular, left a hole in the depth chart far too big to fill. By the close of the season, the only starting defensive player that remained was senior Terrence Tarver.

The 2003 season was not a complete flop, however. The players showed good effort and never failed to put points on the board. They ended with a victory against East Carolina, giving them a 5-7 record.

"The 2003 football season was rough, lots of ups and downs," said offensive lineman Joe Mitchell. "I'm just happy we ended on a good note to start next year off on."

VOLLEYBALL

Like any sports team, the Tulane volleyball team began the year with dreams of victory; however, this year coach Betsy Becker and her players had more than high hopes to justify their expectations. Not only were six starters and ten letter-winners returning, but so were sophomore Katie Case and junior Anastasia Kenon—both of whom missed the majority of last season on account of injuries. The team was ready to play.

Their season did prove to be a great one. It ended with a close loss to Memphis in the quarter-finals of the Conference USA Tournament and a 23-8 record.

"We're obviously disappointed with the outcome of tonight's game, but this does not take away from what we accomplished as a team this season," Becker said after the Memphis game.

Three players were honored for their individual success by receiving Conference USA awards. Senior Karlyn Daly was named Defensive Player of the Year and earned a position on the first team. Junior Deva Fowler also earned a position on the first team and second team honors were given to Kenon.

"This is such a well-deserved honor for all three of these players," Becker said. "Deva and Anastasia have put up big numbers for us, and Karlyn has been nothing short of outstanding. But our team is a true team, and we all realize that none of these individual honors would be possible without the help of everyone else on the court."

SOCCER

You would not think that any sports team where nearly half of the players are new would have the power or discipline to make it far into the season; however, the 2003 Green Wave soccer team and its twelve veteran players, two freshly healed athletes and thirteen freshmen were ready to prove doubters wrong. The team, the largest in Tulane history, also achieved its greatest number of wins.

"We are bringing in a lot of new people and the level of play is the highest we've had since I've been here," said head coach Betsy Anderson. "We probably have five or six freshmen who could challenge for a starting spot almost immediately and all of them will have the opportunity to contribute right away."

Tulane's regular soccer season began with a victory against Southwest Texas State on Friday, August 29, 2003 and ended with a loss to Southern Miss on Friday, October 31, 2003. In the Conference-USA tournament, Tulane tied with Texas Christian University and lost to DePaul in the semifinals.

"Everyone played to the last second, and I'm proud of them for that," said Anderson. "I told the girls after the match that they should walk away from this one with their heads held high. This was a great game and we really had a great season."

The Green Wave excelled in the 2003 season. Senior Asia Simons and Freshman Jackie Obert were designated members of the All-Conference USA team. Overall, the Green Wave attained an 11-7-1 season, a record number of wins for Tulane women's soccer.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Green Wave cross-country runners have made great progress this year. Although the team is relatively young, they have successfully competed at several meets this year. Both the men's and women's teams posted many individual, as well as team, first-place finishes during the season.

The first three meets of the season, the Tulane Invitational, Southern Miss Invitational, and Ragin' Cajun Invitational, were dominated by the Green Wave with both teams capturing first in each event. Tulane also gave a good showing at the Conference USA Championships in Florida this fall. "We ran well and our young runners gave their full effort," Tulane coach Heather Van Norman said. "We're a young team and I see a lot of potential for us."

Along with having placed strongly in various tournaments this year, the Green Wave was honored with 5 individual recognitions. Freshman Bessie Hatch was named Louisiana Sports Writers Association Freshman Of The Year for women's cross country while freshman Tyler Chapman earned the honor for men's. Hatch, along with her teammate, sophomore Lisa Green, was named to the All-Louisiana women's team, and junior Philip Aagaard and senior Ryan Gallagher were selected for the all-state men's team. The Tulane team did not receive any individual honors last year, so these recognitions reflect the teams' marked improvement from the previous season.

From winning the Ragin' Cajun Invitational to placing strongly at the Conference USA Championship, the cross country team has proven that hard work really does pay off.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Despite the loss of several key starters, five new freshman to break in, and the loss of Senior Ivan Pjevcevic to injury, the men's basketball team made a strong showing at home this year, with all 11 wins of the season at New Orleans. High points included a victory over nationally seeded UAB and a decisive victory over next-door neighbor Loyola of New Orleans. Sophomore Quincy Davis lead the way in scoring with a average of 10.6 points per game, while Ben Benfield scored 36 three-pointers over the course of the season to become the Green Wave's leader on the key.

The team's hard work got them all the way to the C-USA tournament, but they experienced a heart-breaking loss in the first round to Charlotte. "It is a disappointing way to end the season," Tulane Men's Basketball Coach Shawn Finney said. "But we had a lot of positives this year and I have plenty of reasons for optimism for next year. We have learned from our mistakes all year and this adversity will only help us find success in the future

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The Tulane women's basketball team faced an uphill battle this season, having lost six of its veteran players. However, Seniors Kelly Nadeau, Tiffany Wilson, and Delacey Joseph took the lead and helped the Green Wave make a good showing of the season. High points included a 22 point victory over Nicholls State and a 16 point win over Southern Miss that secured the Green Wave a seat in the C-USA tournament.

This in part was due to Junior Lakethia Hampton's amazing effort over the season, averaging 13.4 points and 8.1 rebounds per game. "It is always nice to get a win on Senior Day, but it is especially nice that the win put us in the Conference USA Tournament," Tulane head coach Lisa Stockton said. Unfortunately, despite a 13 point effort from Sophomore D'Aundra Henry, Tulane came up short against Marquette in the first round. However, we can surely expect more from the women's team next season.

MEN'S TENNIS

The amount of athleticism demonstrated by Tulane's Men's Tennis team this year was hard to ignore. Over the past few years the team has become progressively stronger and more successful, not only in Conference USA, but also throughout all Division 1 conferences. The team, which is No. 19 in the nation, had another successful year under the head coaching of Robert Klein. After ending a season with wins against SEC schools such as LSU, Vanderbilt, and Mississippi State, the Green Wave men's tennis team went on to claim its second straight title as Conference USA Men's Tennis Champions after upsetting the No. 1 ranking TCU team by 4-1. The team's success has been due to hard work, dedication, and true talent spreading throughout the entire team. The men then went on to claim many of the individual Conference USA awards. Senior Michael Kogan was named Conference USA Player of the Year, David Goulet was named Freshman of the Year, and Coach Klein was honored as Conference USA's Coach of the Year. Junior Dmitriy Koch, along with Kogan, made the all-conference first team, and Goulet and Sophomore Jacobo Hernandez were named to the all-conference third team.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Under the direction of head coach David Schumacher, the Tulane Women's Tennis team stood out in intercollegiate tennis competition this year. After finishing a season with big wins against non-Conference USA teams such as LSU, Arizona, Texas, Arkansas, and Rice, the team proceeded to win its second straight title as Conference USA Women's Tennis Champions by defeating TCU 4-1., ending the season No. 12 in the nation. The Green Wave also brought home many of the individual post-season Conference USA awards. Coach Schumacher was named the Coach of the Year and Sophomore Jenny Kuhn was named Player of the Year for Conference USA. The team was also represented throughout the announced all-conference teams. Maria Ivanov and Kuhn were named to the first team. Julie Smekodub, Dorottya Magas, and Darya Ivanov represented the Green Wave on the second team, and Nancy Kockott was named to the third team.

BASEBALL

Tulane Baseball is coming out swinging this year. The Green Wave has racked up twelve Conference USA wins and twenty-nine overall wins so far this year. The Wave's most recent win streak over No. 11 Southern Miss featured seventeen runs scored each game, with sophomore pitcher Brian Bogusevic striking out a career-high ten batters.

Other highlights of the season included a victory over archrival LSU on their home turf, with senior Joey Charron tying the Tulane career saves record, and a 10-1 win over Cincinnati featuring sophomore outfielder Nathan Southard gaining a double, a sacrifice fly, and three RBI's. This season has also seen junior catcher Greg Dini lead the way with eight home runs thus far. If the Green Wave keeps this up, they are surely bound for the regionals again.

TRACK

From high jumping to running the 400-meter dash, the Green Wave's Track and Field Team in 2003-04 was stacked with athletes who were constantly practicing to achieve their individual goals and team goals. The team had an outstanding year in indoor and outdoor competition. Heather Van Norman and assistants coached the team to surpass many of the records it held from the previous season. The Green Wave had a great showing at the Conference USA Indoor Track and Field Championship. The girls won fourth place with a total of 78 points. Gloria Asumnu earned the title of Conference USA Freshman of the Year after her outstanding performance at the championships. Gloria won the 60-meter dash, earned second in the 200-meter dash, and was a leg on the 400-meter relay team which finished fourth. Junior Lissie Mo also had a great performance with a first place win in long jump and fifth place in the triple jump. Jillian Green followed in second place behind Mo in the long jump. Birka Wicke earned points for the team by placing second in the mile run and seventh in the 3,000-meter run. Wicke along with team mates Pradiou, Wiggins, and Garwood took third in the Distance Medley Relays. Junior Angel Dooley earned fourth in the 60-meter dash, eight in the 200, and helped the 4X400 relay team finish fourth. Senior Sheena Greenwood took fifth place in the 800-meter and was a part of the distance medley team. These and many other members of the team contributed to the Green Wave's improvement in indoor competition this year.

After gaining some respect from other conference teams at the indoor championships, the team was ready to show the conference that it would also surpass expectations in outdoor competition. Jelena Jurlina was acknowledged as the Conference USA Women's Track and Field Athlete of the Week for two consecutive weeks while Jillian Green was awarded the national 2004 Wilma Rudolph Award. The Green Wave finished off the outdoor season by earning fifth place at the Conference USA Track and Field Outdoor Championship and had a 17 point improvement from last year. Angel Dooley earned points for the team by placing fourth in the 200, fifth in the 400, and helped the 4X400 relay team earn sixth. Eva Lustigova placed fourth in the 800, while Lissie Mo placed seventh in the triple jump, third in the long jump, and ran a leg on the 4X400 team. Helmi Leppanen earned third place in shot put and second place in javelin. Team mate Jelena Jurlina placed eight in the shot, third in discuss, and first in javelin. Jurlina, Mo, Sauls, Asumnu, and Leppanen all advanced to the NCAA Regional Championships. All the girls had outstanding performances but Jurlina was the sole member of the team to go on to the NCAA Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championship. Jurlina competed in both javelin and discus at the championships. She claimed ninth place in discus and threw the second best distance in Tulane's history.

SWIM AND DIVE

This year marked a reawakening in Tulane Athletics. For the first time since the 1989-1990 season, the Green Wave once again had a women's swimming team. With the simple goal of "putting their best foot forward" from head coach Daniella Irle, the team has had an amazing first season, going 6-2 in competitions. The team is composed of 14 freshmen and one junior – none of whom have had previous college level competition experience.

Coach Irle said of the team, "They are laying the groundwork for the future of Tulane University swimming and diving, and I am very proud of how they have conducted themselves this past fall. They all deserve much success."

Besides winning dual meets against Florida A&M (80-15), Florida Southern (86-9) and North Florida (67-28) on November 1, North Texas (73-38) and Arkansas-Little Rock (82-12) on November 15 on the road, the team beat out four other schools at the Zips Invitational on December 4-6. The girls finished seventh out of the 11 teams attending.

The Tulane University swim team finished fifth in the Conference USA Championship. Resulting from this meet, sprinter Linda McEachrane was named C-USA Freshman Swimmer of the Year. Both she and distance swimmer Leslie Christian would qualify for the NCAA Championships with victories in the 100- and 1,650-yard freestyles.

When asked about her experience on the team this season, McEachrane said "I guess it's been a really long year and the team's been really close – we worked really hard and were all friends at the end of the year, really supporting for the championship."

A diving team will be established in the coming year. Based on this year's performance, it is not unlikely we will see great things to come from the women's teams in '04-'05.

MEN'S GOLF

The Men's Golf team has done its part well, achieving first place in the Moe O'Brien Invitational. A few members of the team have also received a number of individual accolades. Michael Thompson won the league's "Freshman of the Year" award, the first time a Green Wave team member has done so. Junior Chris Wheeler and Thompson were named to the All-Conference USA squad.

WOMEN'S GOLF

Tulane Women's Golf had stellar showings at its tourneys this year. The Green Wave had blowout at the Conference USA tournament, with Sophomore Liliana Alvarez coming in at even par seventy-two completing a Tulane sweep of all 3 days. "I'm thrilled for Lili," head coach Sue Bower says. "This is something she said she wanted to do from the beginning of the year, and I couldn't be happier for her. This is a great win, and it was important for us to get some momentum going into the NCAAs." The team also swept the Tulane invitational earlier this year despite poor weather, with freshman Mary Ellen Jacobs's three over par performance helping to put the Green Wave thirty-four strokes under runner-up LSU.

PROUD TO BE GREEN

These men, showing their spirit in full color, cheered for the Tulane football team in their game against Texas Christian University on Labor Day, Monday, September 1, 2003, in the Louisiana Superdome. This band of friends from InterVarsity Christian Fellowship can be found cheering at many football games, volleyball matches, and basketball games throughout the school year, spelling out such words such as WAVE, TULANE, and GREEN- WAVE. They are part of the strong core of students who come out to cheer their fellow classmates in their games, meets, and competitions. "We paint up to support our athletic department and promote school spirit," says senior Jarrod Egley, "Getting on SportsCenter is only a bonus."

BASEBALL CLUB

For those students that have a love of the game, Tulane's Club Baseball team is the perfect organization to become active in during both the fall and spring semesters. The president of the team, Damian Aufiero, comments on what makes Tulane's Club Baseball team so unique: "Tulane Club Baseball is not a club. It is the team that doesn't care about strength or conditioning or other stuff that 'normal' college teams might emphasize. Tulane Club Baseball- For those that just want to play." The team members are there to play ball and have a good time. Of course they practice and compete, but the memories of just having a good time with the guys are most important to them. The club practices at Audubon field at least once or twice a week to prepare for games. The team is scheduled to play a total of eight games across the state of Louisiana and as far as Southeastern Texas. Other than witnessing the crack of bats and players running bases while watching one of the team's practices, one also notices the special bond that is present between the teammates. A Sophomore Club Baseball player, Steve Parrish, summed up his view on the team by saying, "The club baseball team is a lot of fun with the guys, the roadtrips, and the parties. Oh, and we play baseball every once in a while too."

GYMNASTICS CLUB

Tulane Gymnastics Club is a coed team that meets four times per week and competes against other college gymnastics clubs. Besides practicing at the Reily Student Recreation Center, the club also meets at All-Star Gymnastics in Harvey, Louisiana. They participate in floor, bar, beam, and vault exercises. This year the club participated in the Nationals held in Michigan. "Tulane Is Good" is the gymnastics club motto.

FENCING CLUB

Tulane Fencing Club meets four times a week on Mondays, Wednesdays, Saturdays, and Sundays. Each practice begins with stretching, calisthenics, and footwork. The members then proceed to participate in beginner and advanced lessons taught by the fencing coaches, Richard Exnicios and Angela Torres. The fencers then move on to free-fencing-- one-on-one competitions between two people with the choice of foil, epee, or saber as their weapon. Tulane Fencing Club participates in various tournaments throughout Louisiana, Texas, and Georgia. Not only do they compete against other universities, but they also participate in open tournaments where any member of the United States Fencing Association may participate. Individual members of the club often place. Four members of the club qualified to participate in the Junior Olympics.

FIELD HOCKEY CLUB

The Tulane Field Hockey Club meets twice a week on Monday and Wednesday nights on one of the practice fields behind the Reily Student Recreation Center. The turf field is much smoother than natural grass and provides a good environment in which to play field hockey. Although the team currently has no coach, they still continue to participate in competitions in cities such as Atlanta, Austin, and Houston. The Field Hockey Club combines students of many backgrounds, most of them being northerners and internationals. Thus, the club plays a hybrid version of field hockey combined from many different perspectives to create a more fluid game.

ICE HOCKEY CLUB

Despite the fact that to hold a practice means at least an hour drive to Mississippi or Baton Rouge, the Tulane Club Hockey Team has had a break-out season this year. A winning record and some major victories have propelled the team to a new level of competition in the league. "I think our sweep of second ranked Georgia Tech was the big milestone of the season." says Evan Herman, Team Captain and A.B. Freeman Senior. "Our team's chemistry really came together this season and gave us the determination we needed and the ability to face challenges that had to be overcome."

The team doesn't let school spirit stop when they get off the ice. The Club, led by goaltender and Tulane grad Edwin Wu, has launched "Score against SNUC" to benefit third year Tulane Med student Andy Martin. Martin has been diagnosed with a rare form of sinus cancer and the Club has been taking pledges for donations to him and his research every time Tulane Hockey scores a goal. The team is sure to go far with this kind of spirit in them.

Both the Men's and Women's Lacrosse Clubs practice on the fields behind the Reily Student Recreation Center.

The Men's Lacrosse Club participated in November at the Texas A&M Tournament in College Station, Texas. The Men's Club has been ranked seventh in the nation for their league.

The Women's Lacrosse Club participated in two tournaments during the fall semester and in four league games during the spring semester. The Women's Lacrosse Club was undefeated in their first tournament in Atlanta, competing against Emory, Florida State University, Georgia Tech, Tennessee University, and the University of Central Florida. The club also hosted the Mardi Gras Tournament in City Park this year.

CAPOEIRA CLUB

Capoeira Angola is a traditional art that combines dance, acrobatics, and martial arts. "I once asked my master what Capoeira is," says Aaron Lorenz, club president. "He told me 'It is everything the mouth eats.' It's like the Tai Chi of Brazil."

Originating in Africa, Capoeira was brought to Brazil by enslaved Africans. Officially outlawed and punishable by death until 1938, slaves secretly practiced and used music and chanting to hide what was a martial art as simple dancing. Nowadays, the Capoeira club is able to practice this art openly. Meeting twice a week, members engage in a series of cartwheels, handstands, and spinning kicks. The peak of the art allows two people to do an improvised dance routine that has been compared to a jazz-style performance of dance.

ROWING CLUB

One of the most active clubs on campus is the Tulane University Rowing Association. The team meets very early several days a week to practice their technique and form by rowing on machines at the Reily Student Recreation Center, and by rowing on their home course at the City Park Orleans Canal. In order to be victorious at its races, the team has to master the skills of rowing not only on an individual level, but also on the team level. Because teamwork is essential in becoming a triumphant rowing team, members become close and establish long-lasting friendships. Craig Seaman, a member of the rowing club, said, "We don't really know why we get up at 5:30 almost every morning or make the sacrifices we do, but we enjoy crew because of the people on the team, and the thrill of a good race. It doesn't matter how good or experienced you are. The excitement of you and your teammates rowing together as hard as you can with other boats right next to you who want to win just as bad is an awesome feeling."

RUGBY CLUB

Tulane Rugby is a very active club sport, which practices three nights a week and has competed in and won several tournaments this year. Tulane Rugby won the Cajun Cup of New Orleans and the Deep South Conference Tournament in New Orleans. The team also participated in the Battleship Tournament in Mobile, Alabama and the Mardi Gras Tournament in New Orleans. Not only is Tulane Rugby an athletic club, but it also participates in various social activities, ranging from parties and banquets to playing games with Tulane Rugby Alumni. As senior Chris Sugalski says, "Our rugby team combines athletic events and social events. We are bound by sport as the common bond."

ORGANIZATIONS

The 1929 theme was New Orleans at Mardi Gras. The division pages portrayed scenes from parades, balls and general public reverie. This divider depicts three gentleman carnival participants toasting to another successful year.

This image was chosen by the Jambalaya team for its vibrant coloring and theme of camaraderie. The three individuals portrayed are caught in a rare moment of calm in carnival. This calm in the eye of the storm of Mardi Gras is a little like the executive board of any student organization after a successful program.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTURE STUDENTS

To promote excellence in architecture education, training and practice, the AIAS celebrates its membership in several ways. Members of the AIAS have the opportunity to have their work published in Crit, the only national journal devoted to the work and critical thoughts of architecture students. Each issue provides a dialogue of current issues facing architectural education and the profession.

To foster an appreciation of architecture and related disciplines, the AIAS hosts an annual convention, FORUM, providing students with the opportunity to learn about the issues facing architectural education and the profession, to meet students and professionals with common interests, and to interact with some of today's leading architects and designers.

To organize students and combine their efforts to advance the art and science of architecture, the AIAS represents the sole student voice in the decision making process of such organizations as The American Institute of Architects (AIA), Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture (ACSA), and National Architectural Accrediting Board (NAAB).

TULANE AMERICAN MARKETING ASSOCIATION

The purpose shall be to foster scientific study and research in the field of marketing; to develop sound thinking in marketing theory and more exact knowledge and definition of principles; to improve the methods and techniques of marketing research; to develop better public understanding and appreciation of marketing problems; to study and discuss legislation and judicial decisions regarding marketing; to improve marketing personnel; to record progress in marketing through the publication of papers; to encourage and uphold sound, honest practices and to keep marketing operations on a high ethical plane and to promote friendly relations between students, faculty and business people.

TULANE UNDERGRADUATE LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES ORGANIZATION

TULASO was founded to bring together undergraduates who share an interest in Latin America, ranging from career opportunities to cultural experiences to academic study.

PHILOSOPHY SOCIETY

Formed in 1999-2000, the Philosophy Society provides members of the Tulane and New Orleans communities a forum for discussion of philosophical issues in an informal setting. It is run by a committee of Tulane philosophy graduate and undergraduate major students, and seeks to give all interested a place to express themselves. The Society brings in speakers and shows films on both modern and timeless issues, and also gives information and counseling for undergraduates seeking higher degrees in philosophy.

AUDIO ENGINEERING SOCIETY

The purposes and objectives of the AES shall be the diffusion and increase of educational and scientific knowledge in audio engineering, the promotion and advancement of this science and its allied arts in both theoretical and practical application; the stimulation of interest in audio engineering, the encouragement of the interchange and intercourse of ideas among its members and the promotion and maintenance of high professional standards among its members.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers, AIChE, was founded in 1908. AIChE is a professional association of more than 50,000 members that provides leadership in advancing the chemical engineering profession. Its members are creative problem-solvers who use their scientific and technical knowledge to develop processes and design and operate plants to make useful products at a reasonable cost. Chemical engineers are also at the forefront of research to assure the safe and environmentally-sound manufacture, use, and disposal of chemical products. AIChE fosters and disseminates chemical engineering knowledge, supports the professional and personal growth of its members, and applies the expertise of its members to address societal needs throughout the world.

The Tulane Branch of AIChE promises members, a network of professional contacts, support of professionals, peers and other resources.

WOMEN IN SCIENCE

Women in Science is a national organization whose purpose is to connect student scientists with faculty and professional women scientists locally and nationally. The Newcomb chapter of Women in Science offers members mentoring programs as well as a vast network of colleagues with whom to connect and collaborate. Women in Science is open to all Newcomb Students who major in Chemistry, Biology, Physics as well as all Newcomb pre medical students.

PRE-LAW SOCIETY

This organization shall: serve as a forum for discussing and exchanging information about careers in law, enable students to gain practical help to get into law school, assist students in obtaining part-time or summer employment in the legal field and provide opportunities for motivated students to hold leadership positions in the interest of increasing practical experience as well as adding valuable leadership experiences to his/her resume.

TULANE EXERCISE AND SPORTS SCIENCE SOCIETY

TESSS is an organization comprised of students, faculty and staff of the Tulane community, established to provide education and services that promote wellness and performance enhancement through social interaction, academic and career opportunities, and community service.

Members:

SOCIETY OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

The Society of Automotive Engineers has more than 380 collegiate chapters at universities worldwide. Through the guidance of SAE faculty advisors, over 15,000 student members participate in hands-on engineering projects, attend free section meetings and benefit from free technical papers and Special Publications. Many students build vehicles to compete in SAE's annual Collegiate Design Competitions, which include Mini Baja®, Formula SAE®, Aero Design®, Supermileage®, Walking Machine Challenge™, and Clean Snowmobile Challenge™.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Love Freud? Hate Freud? Then the Tulane Psychology may be for you. The purpose of the Psychology Club is three-fold. One, the psychology club aims to increase awareness of the opportunities of psychology for students at Tulane University. Second, it aims to create a forum for those people interested in learning more about psychology, to gather information, and to participate in the field. Thirdly, the Psychology club serves to facilitate involvement in psychological issues through participation in relevant community service projects, in leadership roles in this organization, and in lectures, films, relevant to the field. This year the Psychology

PRE-MED SOCIETY

The Tulane Premedical Society has been created to: encourage active participation within the medical community by direct association with hospitals, medical schools and research facilities; create a thorough understanding of the educational opportunities offered to the premedical student; and help direct and assist the premedical student throughout his or her undergraduate career.

ANTHROPOLOGY STUDENT UNION OF TULANE

By bringing together anthropology majors, graduate students, professors and staff, the Anthropology Student Union serves to provide a network for undergraduate anthropology students and educate the general Tulane public about anthropology and its disciplines. First formed in 1997, it produces Anthro Week and many social and academic functions for anthropologists and their young colleagues.

SOCIETY OF HISPANIC PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS

SHPE promotes the development of Hispanics in engineering, science and other technical professions to achieve educational excellence, economic opportunity and social equity.

TULANE/NEWCOMB ART STUDENT ASSOCIATION

T/NASA works with students on campus to bring in visiting artists to do workshops, student critiques, presentations about their work and introductions to new techniques

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS

NSBE's mission is to increase the number of culturally responsible Black engineers who excel academically, succeed professionally and positively impact the community. NSBE is comprised of more than 270 chapters on college and university campuses, 75 Alumni Extension chapters nationwide and 75 Pre-College chapters. These chapters are geographically divided into six regions.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS

The objectives of ASCE is to provide a means for all civil and environmental engineering students to learn more about their chosen profession by participating in projects that stimulate their minds and encourage the development of a professional consciousness. They also provide an atmosphere in which students of all levels can become acquainted with one another while practicing how to work together effectively, producing a spirit of congeniality. Contact with the local, state, and national sections will also be encouraged as a means to provide interaction with professional engineers.

BIOMEDICAL ENGINEERING SOCIETY

Biomedical Engineering Society of Tulane University is an organization which promotes better understanding of biomedical engineering by sponsoring academic, professional, and social programs for students interested in the field of biomedical engineering. The Biomedical Engineering Society is open to all students faculty and staff of Tulane University who are interested in Biomedical Engineering.

Some of the events the Biomedical Engineering Society hosts include lectures, general meetings, free hat parties, and social events for the members. The Biomedical Engineering Society also aids its members in gaining employment after graduation by supplying an easy way for prospective employers to view a number of very qualified resumes at the same web location as well as a vast network of potential places of employment for its members.

TULANE URBAN SOCIETY

The Tulane Urban Society shall: educate the Tulane University community about urban issues, especially those issues affecting New Orleans and the metropolitan area; promote and participate in Tulane University's "urban and community-based initiatives;" and support and further the development of an urban affairs/studies curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels of Tulane University

REACH

REACH is a student organization dedicated to the prevention of rape. We provide counseling to survivors of rape, sexual assault, and sexual harassment in the form of a twenty-four hour hotline. In addition, educational presentations are available for Tulane students as well as the larger New Orleans community.

STAND FOR CHILDREN

Stand for Children is America's only nationwide grassroots voice for children taking action on the national, state, community and neighborhood levels. Newly reorganized at Tulane, we are open to any student who wants to be the change in education and be the voice for children of all ages. The goal of Tulane's Stand for Children is to organize people to build a strong student and community voice to give all children the opportunity to grow up educated, healthy, and safe. Our mission is to unite Tulane students, faculty, staff, and alumni and other members of the community to improve the quality of life for local children by engaging in advocacy, education, and service on an on-going basis. RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION

The Residence Hall Association is the governing body of RHA and provides community interaction through on campus living.

MOSAIC

Tulane's Gay Straight Alliance, Mosaic boasts a number of cultural and volunteer opportunities for its members. In addition to helping out at the NO Aids Taskforce at various points throughout the year, the group also promotes awareness of homosexual issues on campus such as AIDS awareness and tolerance. This year, the group attended a conference that focused on the unique issues that a campus LGBT group is faced with. Although Mosaic's primary concern is with gay and lesbian life on the Tulane campus, the group is open to all students who support lesbian and gay life, regardless of sexual orientation.

In addition to their volunteerism, Mosaic members also like to relax. The social events held by the club keep members entertained and connected.

CIRCLE K INTERNATIONAL

Circle K International is college and university students who are responsible citizens and leaders with a lifelong commitment to community service worldwide. The world's leading collegiate service organization was officially recognized in 1955 and continues to be a sponsored program of Kiwanis International. Circle K Clubs exist on more than 550 campuses worldwide. With an official membership of over 11,000 students, Circle K is open to all students.

TULANE MEDIATION CLUB

Tulane Mediation Club provides an avenue for members of Tulane University's community to explore theories and practices of various sorts of mediation. The ultimate aim is to serve Tulane's community by providing an environment in which members may benefit themselves and others by learning to cultivate spontaneous mindfulness, compassion, equanimity, wisdom and moral virtue through meditative practices.

TULANE LEGAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

The Tulane Legal Assistance Program provides students of TV a free legal counseling service as well as low cost representation if needed. TULAP also acts as a vehicle of clinical instruction for students in a undergraduate legal research course or paralegal program, so these students may receive practical experience under the supervision of an attorney, licensed to practice.

TULANE MEN AGAINST RAPE

Tulane Men Against Rape is founded on several facts. While all men are capable of raping, most do not. This would mean being a criminal, and not a real lover. If we want to reduce rape, we must focus on what men can do to personally stop sexual assault. Men can be responsible for not raping someone. They can also stop perpetuating myths about sex and rape. Powerful men can openly pass on to women and other men what it means to be a man who is a good, responsive and responsible lover. Men can reinforce this message to their brothers, friends, fraternity brothers, patients, congregations, students, cadets, officers, sons and fellow athletes. This message can be given at every opportunity - in grade school and high school, in colleges, at parties, and in training camps - as it is woven through daily life. As the men against rape message takes hold, the daughters, wives, sisters, friends, and lovers of secure men will actually become safer among men they know.

SAAB

The Student-Athlete Advisory Board promotes student attendance and interest in athletic events as well as to facilitate communication between non-student athletes and student-athletes on Tulane's campus. To create a positive image of Tulane student athletes by means of various forms of community service.

SOAR

SOAR strives to actively work to eliminate racism and prejudice on our campus and to promote understanding and social justice among all members of our community

TEMS

Since the Fall of 1981, when the organization was founded, the Tulane Emergency Medical Service has provided emergency medical care to the members of the Tulane community. In 1985, Tulane EMS purchased an ambulance and since then has provided on-the-scene care and emergency transportation free of charge to Tulane students, faculty, and staff, both on campus and in the Uptown area. Tulane EMS offers emergency transportation to most New Orleans area hospitals. The Tulane Emergency Medical Service is a certified emergency ambulance service staffed and operated by volunteer Tulane University students who are Nationally Registered Emergency Medical Technicians.

CHEERLEADERS

The objective of the Cheerleaders is to promote spirit throughout Tulane University and to lead cheers at Tulane University football, men's basketball, women's basketball and women's volleyball games. The cheerleaders may also be responsible for sending representatives to any University meetings where the spirit of the student body is concerned and any activities or functions sponsored by the Universal Cheerleaders Association, the National Cheerleaders Association, or any other cheerleaders' association.

SOUNDWAVE

Soundwave is established to provide musical entertainment at Tulane basketball games and thus strive to enhance school spirit. Soundwave also participated in Homecoming and a Mardi Gras parade.

GREEN ENVY

GreenEnvy is the oldest a cappella choir at Tulane University and is the "official" a cappella choir of the school. It has been active for about fifteen years and has gained much respect at the University. We are often asked to perform for the school at public events such as homecoming and for private events such as dinners at the President's house. All of our music is performed a cappella and every title we sing has been arranged by various members of the group. We sing a large variety of mostly pop music and have a wonderful time. We rehearse twice each week for two hours each time, and perform as often as possible.

STUDENT ALUMNI AMBASSADORS

The objective of SAA is to help students recognize the importance of their role in Tulane's future. SAA shall direct its activities toward the fulfillment of four goals designed to strengthen students relationship with their alma mater:

- encourage interaction between alumni and students
- promote class identity
- heighten pride in the university
- increase student involvement in Tulane's future

THEM

Back in the year 1998, an ambitious freshman, Stefanie Goran, saw the dire need for a second a cappella group on campus. Given the tremendous response to Green Envy's auditions and callbacks, and noting the talent that was unable to fit into that select ensemble, she hatched a plan. Plans were shelved temporarily as Stefi got drawn into the freshman experience, but the next year, she sat down with like-minded students Jill Shooman, Chris Blum and Shane Lipskind and they drew the plans for the second a cappella group on campus. It would be a hybrid group -- one that incorporated elements of dance and improvisational humor, a group unlike Green Envy, in a different niche. It was that year that they had the first auditions for what was later known as "THEM." This group of mostly freshmen got off to an admittedly slow start, with their first performance being the end-of-the-year Dorm Tour '00.

College Bowl, or Quiz Bowl, is an organization which fields teams to various intercollegiate academic and TRASH (pop-culture) quiz tournaments. Tulane's team travels regularly to Texas, Georgia and places even farther away to compete against the best players in the country. The organization also hosts an annual Louisiana High School tournament, drawing teams from all over the state.

In 1959, a college bowl team consisting of four students was fielded to the General Electric College Bowl television show, where they lost to Georgetown by 10 points. Thus began the history of academic tournament teams at Tulane. An off-and-on-again organization, College Bowl in its current incarnation was founded by current President Jason Horn in 2001. After a slow start, the team now has over fifteen tournament-attending members. This past year, they attended TRASHionals, the highest competition for pop-culture knowledge, frequented by Jeopardy Tournament of Champions winners, and placed 6th in their division. Their strong showings in the academic field also promise even better results in tournaments to come.

The College Bowl team awaits competition at TRASHionals.

WORLD AFFAIRS FORUM

The World Affairs Forum at Tulane (WAFT) is a not-for-profit group founded by undergraduate and graduate Tulane students. WAFT is dedicated to promoting and encouraging among its members a better awareness and understanding of international activities surrounding the 21st century. These ambitions are promoted by the WAFT student board and faculty advisors, who produce on-campus events, such as open forums featuring domestic and international policy-makers, consultants, and analysts. The World Affairs Forum at Tulane University is a student-administered, private, non-partisan, membership organization with a four-fold mission to:

1. Expand and deepen awareness of international activities.
2. Bring informative and knowledgeable guest speakers to Tulane University.
3. Promote activities to enhance Tulane's image as a world-class university.
4. Serve as a catalyst for building relationships between the Tulane community and the rest of the world.

TULANE UNIVERSITY CAMPUS PROGRAMMING

TUCP directs and coordinates the presentation of educational entertainment, multicultural, social and recreational programs for the Tulane University community. TUCP brought in Dr. Drew Pinsky, Guster, Bobby Jindal, Danny Roberts from The Real World, Colin Quinn, The Roots, Gov. Howard Dean and Mitch Hedberg. They also put on a Concert for the Cure, TGIO (Thank God its Over) when the University Center closed down and Thunderdorm.

On January 30, 2004 "Real World: New Orleans" cast member Danny Roberts and his boyfriend Paul Dill spoke in McAlister Auditorium. The event was sponsored by TUCP.

TULANE UNIVERSITY - AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION

The undergraduate chapter of the Tulane University American Civil Liberties Union was formed in the spring of 2003 and began programming during the 2003/2004 school year. The TU-ACLU is a non-partisan organization devoted to protecting the Bill of Rights and defending civil liberties. Through educational tabling, guest speakers, and organized debates, the TU-ACLU was successful in promoting discussion on issues such as the Patriot Act, same-sex marriage, and the death penalty. After a tremendously successful inaugural year, the TU-ACLU is now recognized as one of the most active undergraduate chapters of the ACLU in the country.

CHI ALPHA CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Chi Alpha is an interdenominational campus ministry that is active on campuses all over the world. We want to provide students with an atmosphere where they can grow in their faith while attending Tulane University. We strongly believe in the importance of personal and group growth that occurs through one on one meetings with each other, weekly prayer times, and regular worship gatherings. The University is a place where people come to learn from other students and teachers alike; and where people come to be exposed to new ideas and be challenged by other people's thinking and beliefs. Therefore, we seek to foster open discussion among people from all sorts of backgrounds and beliefs so we can all learn and be challenged by each other. In addition, we aim to share the great love of Jesus Christ with fellow classmates. We were very excited to become established here at Tulane University this year, and we feel we can help the university accomplish its goal of enriching lives and opening up minds to truth. In doing so, we feel we can together positively affect Tulane University, the marketplace and even the world for years to come.

INTER VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

InterVarsity Christian Fellowship has been an active organization on Tulane University's campus for nearly forty years. IVCF began in England (Varsity is a British term used for college level students.) in 1877 and was established in the United States in 1941. Tulane students participate in the organization by attending meetings, bible studies, retreats, and service activities. IVCF's national mission statement is, "In response to God's love, grace and truth: The Purpose of InterVarsity Christian Fellowship/USA is to establish and advance at colleges and universities witnessing communities of students and faculty who follow Jesus as Savior and Lord: growing in love for God, God's Word, God's people of every ethnicity and culture and God's purposes in the world." The organization is run by student leadership under the guidance of InterVarsity staff worker, Myron Crockett.

INDIA ASSOCIATION OF TULANE UNIVERSITY

The India Association of Tulane University is student organization dedicated to sharing the cultural experience of India with the Tulane community. As the second largest multicultural organization at Tulane, IATU works to create an atmosphere where students of diverse backgrounds can come together to celebrate Indian traditions. IATU sponsors numerous activities throughout the school year:

Dinners -- IATU sponsors dinners throughout the semester for such events as welcoming students to school and celebration of Republic Day

KARMA -- These parties occur once or twice a semester, where students can dance all night to the latest hip-hop and Indian music.

India Week -- A week of events celebrating India. Events include guest speakers, Indian Food Night, Bollywood movie screenings, and Henna in the Park.

Diwali/Masala -- These cultural shows occur once a semester, and include singing, dancing, and skits. Each is followed by a delicious dinner catered by an Indian restaurant in the area.

Workshops -- This year, IATU is starting a series of workshops aimed to enlighten the student body about Indian customs.

MEN OF COLOR

M.O.C. has been established in order to create an atmosphere of unity not only for all students, faculty, and staff of Tulane University, but also for the New Orleans community. They exist to encourage a positive image of African Americans and to support its members in achieving their educational goals, while striving for academic excellence and cultural awareness among our members.

MOSAIC

Tulane's Gay-Straight Alliance, MOSAIC boasts a number of cultural and volunteer opportunities for its members. In addition to helping out at the NO AIDS Taskforce at various points throughout the year, the group also promotes awareness of homosexual issues on campus such as awareness and tolerance. This year, the group attended a conference that focused on the unique issues that a campus LGBT group is faced with. Although MOSAIC's primary concern is with gay and lesbian life on the Tulane campus, the group is open to all students who support lesbian and gay life, regardless of sexual orientation.

In addition to their volunteerism, MOSAIC members like to relax. The social events held by the club keep members entertained and connected.

TULANE UNIVERSITY VIETNAMESE ASSOCIATION

The Tulane University Vietnamese Association (TUVA) is a student organization committed to exposing and promoting the rich Vietnamese culture to the diverse community of Tulane University. The fundamental mission of the association is to establish a network of individuals who are interested in understanding the Vietnamese heritage, have a sincere appreciation for Vietnamese traditions and beliefs, and are dedicated to the preservation of the Vietnamese way of life. This longstanding purpose of TUVA is intended to expand the horizon of cultural diversity and to enhance the learning experiences for students who select Tulane as their temporary home.

ACORNS

ACORNS (Action Committee on Reaching Newcomb Students) is a new student group for Newcomb freshmen wishing to express concerns and ideas to upperclassmen. The group is for otherwise uninvolved freshmen who want to provide insight into the Newcomb freshmen experience.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

Alpha Lambda Delta, a national honor society, recognizes first year Newcomb students who attain a 3.5 GPA during their first year of college. The purpose of Alpha Lambda Delta is to encourage superior academic achievement among students in their first year in institutions of higher education, to promote intelligent living and a continued high standard of living, and to assist students in recognizing and developing meaningful goals for their unique roles in society.

ASSETS

Assets play a special role for Newcomb, primarily providing support and service for Newcomb events. Rising Newcomb sophomores are selected for Assets on the basis of their contributions to Newcomb during their freshman year.

AFRICAN AMERICAN

WOMEN'S SOCIETY

is an organization that works to address issues that are important to African American women, increase awareness, nurture development, and encourage involvement.

DAISY CHAIN

is a select group of Newcomb juniors who play an important role at Commencement and Freshman Convocation. Wearing all white, these women collectively hold a large garland of fresh daisies and honor seniors by representing their past and acknowledging their future. All Newcomb juniors are invited to apply in the spring.

INTENSIVE NEWCOMB

Newcomb students participate in coeducational classes and activities and, at the same time, enjoy the benefits of a women's college experience. Newcomb College has a strong tradition of educating women who are willing and able to provide leadership in all aspects of their lives. Intensive Newcomb (IN) is designed to foster achievement and leadership through innovative programming in an environment that is supportive of students' dreams and goals.

LEADERSHIP TO GO

Leadership To Go is a leadership development program designed for Newcomb students, both leaders and potential leaders. The program is designed to fit in with the busy schedule and lifestyle of a Newcomb student. Each program will last no longer than 30 minutes, giving valuable yet concise information that students can use immediately.

MORTAR BOARD

is a national senior honor society that selects members on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and service. Members work closely with Newcomb Student Programs and annually plan events including Toast to Newcomb and the Newcomb Leadership Conference for Girls, and Ms. Paul Tulane / Mr. Sophie Newcomb.

NEWCOMB NOTABLES

assist Newcomb College by serving as representatives for the Dean of the College. Their primary function is to interact with prospective students, parents, and alumnae at functions sponsored by the Dean of Newcomb College.

NEWCOMB MENTORING PROGRAM

The Newcomb Mentoring Program is dedicated to providing new students with support, assistance, accurate information, and a safe environment to express concerns.

As a first-year student you have the opportunity to be mentored by an upperclass student who will help ease your transition into your first year at Newcomb College. Newcomb Mentors are committed to promoting women's leadership, academic achievement, and social development.

OAK WREATH

is a special Newcomb honor bestowed on a small number of accomplished senior women. Celebrated with a special award and dinner, these women are recognized for their contributions to Newcomb through academics or involvement.

Newcomb Senate Treasurer Alison Nunez and Vice President of Student Organizations for the USG Paula Eichenbrenner, and Site Coordinator put a fresh coat of paint on the Audobon Montessori School.

PUBLIC LEADERSHIP EDUCATION NETWORK

THE PUBLIC LEADERSHIP EDUCATION NETWORK (PLEN) is a national consortium of women's colleges working to educate women for public leadership. Through PLEN, Newcomb students can participate in seminars and programs in Washington, D.C., that focus on topics including Women in Congress, Women and the Law, and Women and International Policy.

WOMEN IN SCIENCE

is a nationally affiliated organization that works to connect women students with faculty and peers interested in the sciences.

1917-1927 FRATERNITIES

Newcomb, with its usual vitality and spirit, turned out full force to help in the great drive for funds, known as Realization Day. The girls served as clerks in stores, as soda dispensers, and even turned their hands at putting up play bills. The results were excellent.

1887-1937

The 1937 Jambalaya pays tribute to the golden anniversary of Newcomb College. The theme of this yearbook was the history of Newcomb, its divider pages chronologically chart the college's history, beginning at 1887, when BVB Dixon, the college's first and only president, agreed to take the position.

In the opposite illustration, Newcomb girls post playbills for a production of the Hunchback of Notre Dame for the second Realization Day. This event asked all university students to work in local businesses for one day, and donate their earnings toward the construction of the Tulane Stadium, which was located where Aron and Willow dorms are located now. This stadium was informally known as the Sugar Bowl, and is the namesake of the annual bowl game.

LAURA NICHOLSON

To Our Fantastic Daughter,

When you were born we knew that you had to be something special. Born on Friday the 13th it could have gone either way. But you turned out to be the brilliant, wonderful and caring person that we knew you could be. We couldn't be prouder of you.

As you start your new life and career know that we are all here for you. With God's help we know that you will become the person your Papa knew you could be.

We Love You!
Mom and Dewey
Dad and Penny
Granny Goins

AARON KULIK

Dear Aaron, aka AJ,

We admire your strength on selecting a university you felt was right for you, regardless of where your friends went.

We congratulate you on all you have accomplished.

We have seen you grow and mature over the last four years and wish you much continued success on reaching your goals.

With much love,

Mom and Dad

DORRIE SWANSON

Dorrie,

Brains, beauty, social grace, and social intelligence. What a combination for a great first year! Dancing, good friends, great roomie, dean's list, loving psychology, choosing a major, going to Australia... I couldn't be more proud of you!!! I love you best of all in the whole world!!!

Smoochers,

Mom

ELIZABETH A. SINGREEN

Our Dearest Elizabeth,

Your initial efforts produced this fine Yearbook – the first in eight years!

We're inexpressibly proud of you for this and your work as Jambalaya staff writer, WTUL DJ, and Mission Honduras envoy, and for your scholarships both here at Newcomb and in Switzerland, Rome and Belgium, your History-French double major and your thesis on the Ursuline nuns.

All this after transferring from Swarthmore where your work included the Phoenix, your own Art Show, Rotaract VP, Student Council and the Frisbee Team.

Through it all, you have kept your sweet, loving disposition and gentle ways.

We love you so much, Elizabeth!

Mom, Dad & Michael

ADRIAN ELFERSY

Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that obtaineth understanding. Proverbs 3:13

Congratulations, Adrian! We are very proud of you and your achievements and always wish you continued success and happiness in your life!

Love,

Mom and Dad

DANIEL SCHWARTZ

Dan –

You have advanced to this great moment with inner strength and confidence. Along the way you have become wise and have attracted many good friends.

You are equipped to face any challenge that comes your way. This ending begins a new and wonderful chapter in life.

With pride, joy and love,

Mom, Dad and Jonathan

CHEA MATHERNE

Chea,

Congratulations on your successful freshman year at Tulane. Wishing you the Best of Luck for a bright and wonderful future!

Love,
Mom

MEGAN SMITH

Megan,

The last time we did this, we said “Laissez les bon temps roulet.” You certainly did!

From a little girl with a missing tooth to the Editor-in-Chief of The Tulane Hullabaloo. What a story! We are so proud we’re “poppin’ buttons” again.

Next up, another title: Megan A. Smith, Esq.

Freshman class raises the bar

Margo Adler
news editor

As Tulane gears up for its 2003 fall semester, it also prepares to welcome its largest freshman class in University history. With 1,640 new students, the year's group of freshmen has exceeded past classes' statistics and enrollment numbers.

The early-3000 percent of newly accepted students officially enrolled at Tulane for this fall, according to Tulane administrators. "We were surprised that so many people took up our offer," said Dean of Undergraduate Studies Richard White.

White said that the growing academic reputation at Tulane University. "We're becoming a much more selective institution and the college-bound rate is one of the best in the country."

This year's freshman class not only boasts the largest enrollment ever, but also the best academic statistics, with an average SAT score of 1330. In addition, 61 percent of freshmen graduated in the top 10 percent of their high school classes.

The academic superiority of the incoming class is a growing trend for Tulane. "For the past five years, each class has been better academically than the one before it," White said.

Fifty-eight percent of this year's freshman class is male and 52 percent female. A admissions official would like to see the number of female students increase. Currently, 14.1 percent of the group comes from Louisiana residents, White said.

"I'd like to have more Louisiana residents," White said, "but those who qualify from this state, like Louisiana, have a lot of options. Other states, like Texas, have a lot of options. Other states, like Texas, have a lot of options. Other states, like Texas, have a lot of options."

As for the rest of the group, 7.29 percent of the freshmen are from France, 11.8 percent from Texas, 3.73 percent from the Mid-South, 2.28 from the Southeast, 20.3 percent from the Northeast, 15 percent from the Midwest, 18.15 percent from the West and 7.91 percent from elsewhere. Out of the 50 states, South Dakota is the only state not represented in this year's group of freshmen.

Tulane's Admissions Office is currently reviewing applications for the 2003 fall term. Acceptance decisions were based on a variety of factors, with the most weight on secondary school records. Admissions counselors consider secondary school GPA, types of classes taken (Honors, AP or regular subject preparation), especially in Math and English, and the letters of recommendation. Recommendations are generally reliable, according to White, because teachers and counselors usually only recommend a student when they feel they cannot pass up. Although nearly all recommendations received the student in a positive light, White said she sometimes tried to indicate a low level of confidence in the student's application. Other factors considered for applicants include SAT or ACT scores, extracurricular activities and the answers given for the questions on the application form and the essay.

White said that she would like to see more students from Louisiana, but she also noted that there are a lot of options for students from other states. "We're becoming a much more selective institution and the college-bound rate is one of the best in the country."

Hurricane season awaits freshmen

sports editor

Tulane freshmen will soon discover that New Orleans is not just a city with a bayou and a Mardi Gras parade. It's a city where the weather can be as unpredictable as the football team.

After the first major rain shower of the year, new students at Tulane will discover that not only are the sidewalks not paved, but they are worthless after a heavy downpour. "It's a city where the weather can be as unpredictable as the football team," said a freshman.

The National Weather Service has predicted a 50 percent chance of an above-normal hurricane season. The NWS and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration expect a total of 12-15 tropical storms this hurricane season, with six to nine of them developing into hurricanes.

Newcomb sophomore Trista Schmitt, a Midwesterner, said she was surprised by the rain.

With the campus renovation plan underway, students are getting used to a construction zone that is a constant presence. "It's a city where the weather can be as unpredictable as the football team," said a freshman.

The summer months brought the beginning of campus-wide preparation for the closing of the University Center this December and the destruction of Zernemy Hall. New trees erected on the projects, there have been several classes. McAlister Drive has been closed repeatedly and accidents have been the result of the UC and Bruff Quad.

With multiple construction sites affecting the center of campus, many Tulane students, including freshmen, are unaware of their respective purposes, and how it will affect them in the near future. Zernemy Hall, located on the left end of Bruff Quad, was torn down Aug. 4 as a new dormitory can be constructed in place. The proposed new building will offer more room for Tulane students and feature state-of-the-art dorm room design.

Construction has created alternate paths across McAlister Drive and throughout Bruff Quad.

locations throughout this semester. Since announcement of the plans for University Center renovation, Tulane officials and students have been preparing for the changes to the center of campus.

After a year of planning, the anticipated program to provide the Tulane community with Regional Transit Authority passes has fallen through.

The program would have allowed students and faculty to purchase discounted city and streetcar fares, reducing fees on unlimited ride passes from $55 per semester to $24 per year.

The Tulane Board of Administration voted in May to authorize the WaveRider program following its passage through the Undergraduate Student Government, Associated Student Body, a student referendum and multiple other administrative bodies.

Zernemy Hall, located on the left end of Bruff Quad, was torn down Aug. 4 as a new dormitory can be constructed in place. The proposed new building will offer more room for Tulane students and feature state-of-the-art dorm room design.

With the campus renovation plan underway, students are getting used to a construction zone that is a constant presence. "It's a city where the weather can be as unpredictable as the football team," said a freshman.

The summer months brought the beginning of campus-wide preparation for the closing of the University Center this December and the destruction of Zernemy Hall. New trees erected on the projects, there have been several classes. McAlister Drive has been closed repeatedly and accidents have been the result of the UC and Bruff Quad.

With multiple construction sites affecting the center of campus, many Tulane students, including freshmen, are unaware of their respective purposes, and how it will affect them in the near future. WaveRider hits the brakes

After a year of planning, the anticipated program to provide the Tulane community with Regional Transit Authority passes has fallen through.

The program would have allowed students and faculty to purchase discounted city and streetcar fares, reducing fees on unlimited ride passes from $55 per semester to $24 per year.

The Tulane Board of Administration voted in May to authorize the WaveRider program following its passage through the Undergraduate Student Government, Associated Student Body, a student referendum and multiple other administrative bodies.

Tulane mourns loss of Newcomb student

Newcomb sophomore Jillian M. Albert passed away over the summer. She was found in her New Orleans apartment June 20. While the details of the circumstances surrounding her death remain within her family, Tulane administrators assure that no foul play was involved. There will be a memorial service for Jillian Sept. 5 at 3:30 p.m. in the Myra Clare Rogers Chapel located near the Josephine Louis Residence Hall. Family and friends of Jillian will be sharing their own personal insights into the young woman's life and celebrating the 19 years she spent with them. All students, faculty and staff who knew Jillian are invited to attend. See the next edition of the Tulane Hullabaloo for additional coverage.

Cowen battles BCS, Dickson preps for future

John Hrbertchuk
news editor

The man Green was loyalists named in 1993 in June has turned the tide on the athletics debate at Tulane and throughout the nation.

President Scott Cowen and the Tulane Board of Administrators' extensive investigation into the viability of maintaining a Division I-A athletics program brought Tulane to the brink of dropping some of its sports to lower divisions. But an unusual move by the Board set a new mission for Tulane's administration and a new era in Tulane's sporting history.

In its June 10 resolution, the Board charged Cowen and Athletic Director Rick Dickson to find a way to make Tulane's athletics financially sustainable and to "take all necessary steps" to improve Tulane's status, including "working with other universities to alter the current arrangement of the Bowl Championship Series schedule to maximize, if not eliminate, its adverse effect on Division I-A athletics."

Cowen has not requested any action from Congress but still knows what will make the trip a successful venture for Tulane BCS school, not least is that they will look at the 1990s seriously and encourage all of us in Division I-A to really sit down and see if we can eliminate some of the adverse effects of the Bowl Championship Series without having to have intervention," Cowen said.

The following week, Cowen will travel to Chicago with fellow members of the Presidential Coalition for Athletic Reform, an alliance of presidents who do not support the BCS, to meet with members of the BCS Presidential Oversight Committee.

The Sept. 4 meeting, facilitated by NCAA President Miles Brand, will provide a forum to discuss the interdependence of the schools, obstacles to the more prestigious bowl games for non-BCS schools and possibly a chance to "bring to talk about some very broad approaches to how we could change the system that would value to everybody concerned," Cowen said.

Cowen named to NCAA Board

John Hychorzuk
staff writer

Conference USA selected Tulane President Scott Cowen to serve on the NCAA Board of Administrators this week.

In this role, Cowen said he has three primary goals: higher academic standards for student athletes, lower costs for competition in Division I and a level playing field for postseason football play.

"This appointment gives me, Tulane and C-USA a place at the table where important issues facing intercollegiate athletics are discussed," Cowen said.

Cowen has received national attention for his fight against college football's Bowl Championship Series. The series determines which teams play in the four major bowl games and for the National Championship. "I suspect I was selected by my colleagues because of my seniority on C-USA's board and my public profile in regard to athletics. I hope to use this opportunity to seek athletic reform and more effectively align athletics with the mission and goals of our universities," Cowen said.

Cowen and representatives from other non-BCS schools formed the Presidential Coalition for Athletic Reform in July, and the group named Cowen its president in August. Cowen testified to Congress during BCS anti-trust hearings Sept. 4.

Cowen replaces former C-USA representative William Mose, whose resignation in charge of East Carolina University will take effect Sept. 30.

The NCAA Board consists of 18 representatives. All Division I-A conferences, including C-USA, have permanent seats on the Board. Rotating representatives of Division I-AA and I-AAA conferences fill the remaining seven seats.

State fights underage drinking

An Office of Alcohol and Tobacco Control official writes a Tulane student a ticket for illegal consumption of alcohol at Tad Gormley Stadium, prior to the football game against Northwestern State University Sept. 6.

Lauren DeFrank
staff writer

The Louisiana Office of Alcohol and Tobacco Control's efforts to curb illegal drinking around college campuses and at football games have resulted in a decrease in underage drinking violations.

Approximately 150 officials watch for underage drinking at each Tulane football game and distribute Minor in Possession citations, issued to individuals under 21 who are caught consuming or possessing alcohol. "Everyone wants to go to a game and have fun or some people think if you enforce underage drinking laws that you keep the students from the game," Murphy Painter, commissioner of the Office of Alcohol and Tobacco Control, said. Footrunners Bobby Jindal (R) and Lt. Gov. Kathleen Blanco (D) kept relatively low profiles throughout the debate.

Blanco announced a question on how to reexamine the New Orleans economy with the goal of "rebuilding corporate structures." Jindal, slightly ahead in the polls, used the Republican Party line in rushed responses as he advocated such things as private sector funding for hospitals and roadways and the gradual phasing out of business-targeted taxes.

Hunt Downer (R) gave complex answers, often explaining the intricate tax issues which other candidates avoided.

When asked what would happen if gambling revenue fell in the state, Downer alone responded with the idea of slashing the budget. Other candidates avoided the question by asserting the importance of diversifying the state economy. Randy Ewing (D), former president of the Louisiana State Senate, responded by saying

Tulane marches

Soundwave

Tulane's newly formed marching band made its debut at last Saturday's Homecoming football game against Houston, ending Tulane's status as the only Division I-A school without a band.

Eric Nicholson
contributing writer

While Tulane has had a pep band, Soundwave, which has played at basketball games for more than a decade, this year marks the first time Tulane has fielded a marching band since 1975.

Their first performance consisted of a short pre-game show, during which the band played Tulane's fight song, and a performance immediately following the game. The band also marched in the Homecoming parade before the game. The pre-game show consisted of the members forming a "T," then marching so that the "T" could be seen from the opposite side of the field, with the column in the middle remaining stationary.

The marching band, which is the brainchild of graduate student and drum major Ryan Guillory, began as an idea late last April, but real work in forming the band did not begin until later.

Over the summer, he e-mailed the entire student body with his plan. "It's something I've always wanted to do, and it's something that was missing here," Guillory said.

Currently, the band has approximately 55 members. The band, known as "The Tulane University Marching Band—The Spirit of New Orleans," brought to you by Soundwave, began practicing together at the beginning of the school year, and has had to organize itself in a short time frame.

While most college marching bands practice five days a week and play together year-round, the marching band has only been practicing together twice a week for about two months. The musicians that form the band are a mix of Tulane students, faculty and alumni, along with some members who have no affiliation to the University. "I thought it was foolish to pass on musicians who wanted to play with us," Guillory said.

Their Music Director James Reamy, is associated with the University of New Orleans, but was excited enough at the prospect of a Tulane marching band to join.

Since its beginnings in June, the band has enjoyed great support both from within the Tulane community and

Jambalaya yearbook returns for 100th edition

Bryan Cole
assistant news editor

For the first time since 1995, Tulane University students will be able to remember their college experience through a yearbook, thanks to recent steps taken by a group of undergraduates.

The Tulane Jambalaya, as the yearbook is called, has met twice in the past two weeks to select editors and prepare for the task of putting together a yearbook from scratch.

As of now, an entire editorial board has been selected and planning for a 2004 edition has begun.

Joe Boros, Tulane College sophomore, won the position of editor-in-chief. Boros's high school experiences qualified him for this position, in the eyes of the selection committee.

Boros recognizes the difficulties faced by himself and his staff.

"Starting up from scratch is going to be the biggest problem," Boros said. "We don't have a location, we don't have equipment, we don't have a ready-made staff... we need as much help as we possibly could have."

Help is going to come in the form of student staff members committed to the idea of a yearbook for the Tulane University student body.

Newcomb College senior (and yearbook organizer) Liz Singreen joined with Boros and multiple other students in organizing the initiative to jumpstart the yearbook production on campus.

"I saw other people's yearbooks and it made me really jealous," Singreen, recently named associate photography editor for the publication, said. "I was tired of not having anything to show my friends from high school on breaks."

The Jambalaya was last published eight years ago, but because of problems with what past organizers call excessive costs and inefficient distribution, production was stopped.

To help solve these problems, Tel Bailliet, director of student media and publications, met with a publishing firm who planned to manage the process for Tulane, relieving the staff of what she described as an enormous burden.

"Basically, the marketing and the distribution and the selling of the book is so unbelievably difficult that that's what drowned the Jambalaya," Bailliet said. "That's the part that Taylor Publishing Co. has come in to help us with. That makes it more feasible."

Before the yearbook ceased production, it was available for $60 apiece to all Tulane students. It contained information on student life, Tulane athletics, the community surrounding Tulane and the major events throughout the year.

With the prospect of its return, some students are excited, seeing its development as a necessity to the Tulane community.

"We need a yearbook," Tulane College junior Jason Horn said. "It's stupid that we didn't have one, just like it's stupid that we didn't have a marching band."

Others, such as Tulane College freshman David Welch, are wary of how extensive the book can actually be. "There are so many topics that they wouldn't cover any of the ones that would make it worth reading," he said.

Despite the differing opinions of the student body, though, most individuals on the Jambalaya's staff are optimistic about the upcoming year, including Boros.

"I expect a lot of craziness... a lot of hours put in to getting things running. And I also expect success," he said. "I expect that we will be successful in bringing back a publication that the Tulane community will want to be coming back every year."

A contract still needs to be signed with the publishing company, but work on the yearbook has already begun.

University officials pilot new Orientation programming

Beginning this summer, pilot programs across the country will offer incoming freshmen the ability to take care of the administrative end of Orientation before arriving in the fall.

Ashley Lord
news editor

The students will offer new students the ability to take Accelerated Placement tests, writing exams, language proficiency tests and may include presentations on safety in New Orleans and individual college information sessions.

"Everything we've heard from students is that they love more on and the social programming around it," Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs Debra Taylor said. "The recent program about the social programming. They only complain about the administrative things that they describe as simply being too much to take all at once."

For more students to experience this personal nature by creating small groups," Taylor said.

Valdez-Lindsay said the ability for all students to take part in NOLA could allow for more students to become better leaders while at Tulane.

"There is a myth that it is a locker year for you to visit out at Tulane in NOLA," Valdez-Lindsay said. "We want to debunk this myth that only a few people can lead. Why does there only have to be five to seven people taking part in the program that become leaders? Why can't there be 100 leaders?"

How ever, the expansion of the NOLA program has concerned some students. Some say the inclusion of the entire freshman class may be the first step toward the University canceling the NOLA program entirely, by simply phasing it out.

A group of approximately 20 of these students met with Valdez-Lindsay Dec. 10 to discuss the changes to the program.

"I think that most of the expressed concern is not a program that we have but a program that we may continue NOLA. As like strategies and changes to the Orientation overall,

Uptown Square decision deferred for one month

Jaclyn Roseman
news editor

The City Planning Commission of New Orleans unanimously voted to delay the Uptown Square development until the summer of 2004.

The Commission allowed Tulane one month in which to modify its proposal in order to satisfy a number of conditions during the meeting by the end of February.

Tulane's secret response to a "revised" plan for special expansion under the city's zoning code is to propose the new Uptown Square and to include student housing from the campus of Tulane.

In addition to these relaxations, the new Uptown Square proposal would include a parking garage, a parking lot, a parking lot, and other possible structures.

At a meeting, Tulane representatives said the University has considered traffic studies in the area and most agree a Uptown Square would be fitting because of the high density of the area.

Tulane also plans to keep the low use of the area and to integrate the Uptown Square into the existing Uptown Square area.

All proposed changes are available upon the meeting, but are seen as a disappointment by some.

With regards to the inclusion of the student housing, some students are excited, but many are concerned about the development and the potential for increased traffic and parking issues.

"Another development would be much worse, and it would not need

Alcoholism remains a widespread problem on college campuses

Ashley Lord
staff writer

This year alone, over 10 million students, if not more, would be diagnosed with some form of alcohol abuse, according to the 2004 National Collegiate Alcohol Survey. With alcohol a staple of most college cultures, researchers predict this rate will only rise over the next few graduating classes. To combat this, interventions across the country are trying to provide more alcohol education and substance abuse programming to lower these rates.

At Tulane, the Substance Abuse Clinic along with the Student Health Center and the Educational Resource and Counseling center offer programming to students who feel they may have a drinking problem and meet with those students housing and residence life or Student Affairs refer to them with substance dependency issues.

These university departments, in conjunction with local abuse programs, are attempting to assist the Tulane student body in overcoming alcohol disorders.

Along with those students who already have an alcohol problem, many more are beginning to develop alcohol dependency. It is just a matter of determining how dependent they already are.

More than 14,000 students at 119 four-year colleges around the country answered a variety of survey questions that corresponded to criteria set by the American Psychiatric Association to diagnose alcohol disorders.

In a press release accompanying the study, its principal investigator and Assistant Professor in Pediatrics at the Harvard Medical School John R. Knight said, "Heavy drinking is Dershowitz's speech focused on what he sees as a lack of Jewish leadership and dialogue involving Jewish issues in American universities.

"On 50 percent of American campuses there is not a single, not one, professor who is prepared to speak on behalf of Israel and its right to exist as a Jewish Zionist state," he said. "It is not good to be a Zionist on campuses today in America."

He argued that Israel's supporters remain silent from criticism on both sides by reducing "bribe and understanding" into the delicate Palestinian leadership, not the conflict, is the source of the problem.

Controversy surrounds porn screening at McAlister

Bryan Cole

Tulane University Campus Programming recently decided to screen the adult film "Deep Throat" as an entry from several groups both on and off campus due to the rape and incest scenes associated with the movie.

The screening of adult films as a yearly tradition that TUCP began in the 1970s is a well-known tradition that has been a staple of the film festival since its inception.

"The first objection to the film that we know happened, in 1990, TUCP Vice President of Programming Heather Fagan said, 'As far as we know, from the beginning of the porn, 1969 was the first time anyone ever objected.'"

The objection occurred the year as 30 protesters slowly stood in front of McAlister Auditorium April 18 during the filming. The protesters held signs but were not allowed to talk to the audience during the film.

"The objection occurred the year as 30 protesters slowly stood in front of McAlister Auditorium April 18 during the filming. The protesters held signs but were not allowed to talk to the audience during the film."

Ally Duffy, a volunteer with the Young Women's Christian Association's Rape Crisis Program, was one of the protesters. Duffy explained her reasons for joining the protest.

"Linda Lovelace was raped and abused by her husband and she is portrayed as a victim of her husband's abuse," Duffy said. "It is absolutely offensive that a woman who was raped and abused is portrayed as a victim of her husband's abuse."

Roko also supported protesting at a makeshift supporting women's rally.

"I think porn is a viable medium and using it to raise awareness is not wrong," Roko said. "It is not wrong to use it to raise awareness of a social issue."

Although the film has not been held in any year, Roko's statement was not shared with the group, according to the organization's website leading up April 18.

"The actual taking of TUCP was always a concern, but we adopted the strategy to at least educate us."

Former president candidate and Vice President Howard Dean spoke on the future implications of the 2004 presidential race on American politics at McAlister Auditorium Monday night.

Dean spoke in depth about the role young people have in the upcoming election and in the community.

Dean would be a great role model for a better world."

The College Republicans also changed that. Dean was not allowed to speak on campus because of his controversial speech that was very inflammatory against the president and I was shocked.

The Commission first met Jan. 27 to discuss the resolution. Since then, Tulane has revised some of its original plans, and the administration building, to calm some local fears.

Local building for graduate and residential students to replace from H&W, and a five-story building with 95,000 square foot conference center.

LAS faculty to block summer passage of proposed four-year business school

John Hryhorchuk
senior staff writer

The Liberal Arts and Sciences faculty moved Wednesday to try to block efforts to push through a four-year Bachelor of Science in Management program over the summer for the A. B. Freeman School of Business.

The proposed degree would increase undergraduate enrollment in the business school from the current 643 to an estimated 1,070 by the 2006-2007 academic year and would cost LAS colleges over $1 million annually in lost tuition revenues in each of the next seven years.

Tulane College Dean George Berstein said it is "unclear" how the proposal would impact the colleges, but also states the loss of the money "clearly would hurt."

The LAS faculty passed two resolutions addressing the issue, the first of which calls for Tulane President Scott Cowen to listen to student concerns about the proposal. The second resolution mandates all LAS representatives to the University Senate vote against allowing the final decision on the proposal to be delegated to the Presidential Faculty Advisory Committee for consideration during the summer.

"Various faculty members expressed concerns that there was not sufficient time to give this the examination that it needed before making some kind of decision," LAS Secretary and political science professor David Clinton said. The University Senate will meet Monday for the last time this semester and will have the option of allowing the Committee on Educational Policy, which meets later in the week, to refer the proposal, following the passage of something the LAS faculty will try to prevent.

The business school has requested the issue be brought to a vote promptly so preparations can be made during the summer months with the Office of Admissions to develop a marketing plan for the new program and to ensure it is on schedule to begin by the fall of 2005.

After being presented the details of this degree program, the LAS faculty was addressed by former Tulane College President Kyle Wilson, current Tulane College President Patrick Bohm and former Newcomb College President Rebecca Easby-Smith, who cautioned against allowing the proposal to pass over the summer and called for greater access for stu-

USG ad hoc committee proposes funding political, religious organizations on campus

staff writer

The Student Organization Privileges Review Ad Hoc Committee submitted its report to the Undergraduate Student Government March 30 to address the issue of funding privileges for student political and religious organizations.

The committee recommended funding all organizations with an "opt-out" clause for students who dissent, referred to in the report as Option C.

According to the report, "This option addresses the concerns that religious and political student organizations have about the difficulty of recruitment and programming because of a lack of funding."

The report also said students in religious and political organizations should have access to the money they pay from their own student activity fees.

"The committee considers it important to remember that those students involved in religious and political student organizations are in fact students who have paid their student activity fee... at the same time Option C preserves their freedom of conscience by giving them an opportunity to opt out of funding said organizations."

Under Option C, the Finance Committee would set aside a given percentage of each student's activity fee for political and religious groups. Those organizations would then submit budgets like every other organization, but the Finance Committee would allocate their money only from the percentage set aside.

Students would then be given the option to exclude their student activity fee from funding such groups.

Before this can happen, however, the Student Body Administrative Council must amend its bylaws to allow for the new policy. The SBAC voted for Option D, which calls for full student funding of religious and political organizations without an opt-out clause, in a recent meeting April 7.

This movement began last November when Association of Campus Religious Organizations Councilhead and Committee Chair Evan Sparks initiated the discussion at a USG meeting. A committee was then assembled to address the issue.

"In fall 2003 I began to think about why USG funds all groups except political and religious student organizations," Sparks said. "I thought that political and religious groups had a place and deserved a voice on campus, and that student funding was appropriate."

Sparks was not alone in his feelings on this issue.

"I encountered a lot of strong feelings about it, both positive and negative. Sensing the need to evaluate it further in a more focused environment, [Political Action League] Councilhead Dan Brown, then-Newcomb Senator Lauren Starrett, Engineering Senator Jonathan Bakke and I co-sponsored legislation creating an ad hoc committee to examine the issue. It passed, and I was named the chair of the ad hoc committee," Sparks said.

The committee evaluated other schools' policies, legal ramifications and the fundamental tension of equal access for all student organizations during its deliberations.

The committee found that many other schools in this region of the country and in Tulane's peer group allow such practices, including Auburn University, the University of Virginia and Washington University in St. Louis.

Tulane College President Kyle Wilson, while satisfied with the "methodology" used by the committee to compose the report, rejects this proposal on a fundamental level.

"Allowing funding — even allowing workroom use — for political and religious on-campus organizations is unfair to a student body that represents such a diverse spectrum of political and religious beliefs," Wilson said. "This is not university money we're talking about here. This is student money... I don't feel that it is fair to allocate students' money to groups that may subscribe to ideologies that are antithetical to some people's beliefs."

Wilson disagreed with using the "opt-out" clause as a safety net for students concerned about giving money to specific groups.

"I understand the viability of an 'opt-out' clause, but this presents its own complications. Keeping track of money for students who agree to fund these groups versus students that don't puts an undue strain on our accounting system," he said. "I also think that there will be plenty of people that 'slip through the cracks,' who either forget or aren't aware of this option."

Wilson also articulated another possibly detrimental consequence of such a measure.

"If a radical campus organization was formed that promoted intolerance based on political or religious beliefs, they would be entitled to funding under Option C," he said. "I don't think groups that promote violence and intolerance deserve any recognition at all, much less funding. This is a real possibility and should be a real concern to those who vote on this proposal."

Sparks, on the other hand, sees the main concern in the massive financial weight these groups face because of lack of funding.

"Private donations, dues or other affiliations pay for all of these groups' programming, events, meetings, speakers and activities. These organizations spend a great deal of their time fundraising," he said. "Other student organizations can submit budgets, receive motivation money, make travel requests and use motor pool vans. The students in political and religious groups are prohibited from doing the same." Student political and religious organizations have conflicting views on this topic as well.

"The Tulane College Democrats support what the USG have titled Option C," Lauren Starrett, president

Law, business schools drop in rankings

Gregory Pejc
staff writer

The Tulane Law School and the A.B. Freeman School of Business both suffered a significant decline in the 2005 'U.S. News & World Report's' 'America's Best Graduate Schools' rankings released April 2.

The Business School dropped to 47, five places lower than last year's report, and the Law School fell out of the top tier completely to 56, 11 places lower than its position in the 2004 report.

The Law School also dropped to 32 on the "Law School Diversity Index" down from .35 and .37 the previous two years, a scale in which 1.0 ranks the highest.

Deans of both the law and business schools expressed disappointment over the recent rankings but were also very confident in their respective progress over the last year.

"I am quite confident that Tulane has not only maintained the quality education and programs, for which it is known worldwide, but has actually improved over the past year," Larry Ponoroff, dean of the School of Law, said. "It is well-known and accepted within the law school community that the 'U.S. News [and World Report]' survey is not scientific, ignores many of the factors relevant in assessing the quality of education offered at a particular school and is subject to what could be called artificial manipulation by the law schools."

President Scott Cowen commented on the rankings in a letter sent to the students of these two schools.

"I am pleased that our schools of business and law continue to be ranked in the highest categories of the 'U.S. News & World Report' graduate school rankings," Cowen said. "This type of recognition is one indication of the overall strength and quality of the business and law schools, as well as the entire university."

Cowen also warned against focusing too heavily on the rankings.

"It is also important to remember, however, that these rankings, while popular with external constituencies, are imprecise measures of the quality of an institution and need to be viewed in the context of the positive progress made by each school," Cowen said.

Some in the Tulane community are taking an active role in refining these controversial rankings. For instance, Nicholas Altiero, dean of the School of Engineering, described his work on a council designed to improve the rankings.

"There has been great concern since the inception of the 'U.S. News and World Report' ratings regarding the metrics that they use and their rating methodology," Altiero said. "I am serving on a committee appointed by the ASIEE Engineering Deans' Council that is now working with 'U.S. News [and World Report]' to help them establish more suitable metrics for engineering and to help them differentiate the best metrics for undergraduate programs from those for graduate programs."

Ponoroff also questioned the credibility of the "U.S. News and World Report" ranking methodology.

"Over the years, quite a few schools have been subject to large drops (or gains) in their ranking, despite there being no change in any objective indicator of their performance as academic institutions," he said. "While apparently it is Tulane's turn for such a drop, it is inconceivable that any law school in a given year undergoes objective changes that would justify an 11-point move in either direction."

Nevertheless, Ponoroff said the administration would be discussing ways to improve the ranking in the future.

"We will be studying the data closely and comparing it with our performance in past years and with the performance of comparable schools to see if there are lessons to be learned and concrete steps that we can take to improve our numbers and ranking," he said.

Ponoroff said Tulane was at an "informational disadvantage" because it focused on placing graduates in other programs and not on finding employment, a factor considered by the rankings.

"These and other methodological problems are well-known to outside observers

French department staff member dies

Staff member Lavonne Ricke of the French department died Monday of natural causes, following a brief illness.

Ricke leaves a legacy after working at Tulane since 1989 as a financial associate within the Liberal Arts and Sciences French and Italian departments.

In her honor, all French courses were cancelled Thursday so department members and students could attend her funeral.

THANK YOU

AIDAN AND LIAM

Aidan and Liam have been a constant source of inspiration and joy for us. Although they were unable to be with us for the actual production, tales of their exploits kept us going through the rough times in Jamb-land. Times when we lost pages without a trace, times when all our friends were out enjoying their summer, and times when we simply wanted to give up, the knowledge that there was a little French-American boy somewhere in the city playing with his Thomas the Tank Engine toys or enjoying his sandbox kept us going.

We, the Jambalaya staff, also would like to extend a warm welcome Liam Brian Michel Whittle, the newest arrival of the Bailliet-Whittle family. Liam entered the world in a turbulent period in Tulane Media History, but his presence added just a bit of hope to the situations, because it was a constant reminder that the problems we face during our Media Board crises, are fleeting, at best, and what we will remember from these times will not be the late nights, the extended deadlines, but the friendships made and the feeling of accomplishment that comes only with a completed book, which, at long last, will take its place in the archives of Tulane University as the Centennial Edition of the Jambalaya.

U.S. troops in Iraq

The biggest news event of 2003 was unquestionably President Bush's decision to employ American armed forces to oust Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein. The regime was toppled quickly, forcing Hussein and top members of his Baath political party into hiding. After an exhaustive manhunt, U.S. forces captured Hussein in a small underground hiding area on the banks of the Tigris River.

EVERETT COLLECTION

you've made your point, sis

It may have been a new year, but some things remained the same. Serena Williams once again topped older sister Venus to win Wimbledon and her fifth championship in six Grand Slams—every single one a victory over her sister. We've heard about sibling rivalry, but this is getting ridiculous....

MOVIES

an epic conclusion

In 2008, the one film at the top of everyone's must-see list was The Return of the King. In the final chapter of The Lord of the Rings trilogy, Frodo (Elijah Wood) journeys to Mount Doom to dispose of a very dangerous piece of jewelry. Meanwhile, Aragorn (Viggo Mortensen) and Gandalf (Ian McKellen) lead humanity in one last stand against Sauron's massive army of Orcs and airplane-sized elephants. Will the One Ring be destroyed? Will humanity survive? Will director Peter Jackson finally get a Best Picture Oscar® for his amazing work? All of Middle Earth wants to know....

MUSIC

Work it at the VMAs

As always, the MTV Video Music Awards provided many of the year's most memorable music moments. Coldplay got accolades for Breakthrough Video, '80s popsters Duran Duran won an award for Lifetime Achievement, Justin got the nod for Male Performer of the Year, and Missy strode off with the coveted Video of the Year award for "Work It." To top it all off, the King of Pop saw some of his biggest hits covered with extreme verve by Lars and the gents from Metallica.

It's about time

In response to falling sales, the major music labels agree to drop retail CD prices.

Country crooner Alan Jackson follows up his Greatest Hits, Vol. One with—you guessed it—Greatest Hits, Volume 2.

clones out of the lab, into the studio

The Neptunes' Clones hip-hop compilation debuts at #1 with some cool tracks featuring Busta Rhymes, Jay-Z and other popular artists.

Idol pursuins

American Idol winner Ruben Studdard hits the charts with Soulful, while runner-up Clay Aiken debuts with his own top-selling CD.

TRENDS

TO SWAP OR NOT TO SWAP

With the launch of Napster V2.0 and the new iTunes music store, the Internet continued to reshape the way we listen to music in 2003. But not all was rosy on the World Wide Web. Fearing that online music swapping was eroding profits, the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA) tried to curb unlicensed music downloads by supporting litigation against alleged copyright violators.

Tens of thousands of Harley-Davidson owners saddle up and head to Milwaukee for the hundredth birthday of the famed motorcycle manufacturer.

Does this mean Duran Duran is new? Other shoemakers go back in time with licensed retro shoe designs. These stylish sneakers will surely get your feet moving.

Have bag, will rock. The colorful and stylish Dickies Music Bags can accommodate all your musical gear, regardless of whether you can actually play it.

Jessica Alba shows that simpler is better, sporting a basic black top and artfully faded jeans.

the future is digital

The march toward the digitalization of everything continued in 2003. Music fans embraced ones and zeros, downloading MP3s from iTunes and other new sites. Digital cameras became more affordable and more powerful, while cell phones integrated a host of functions, from MP3 playback to digital photography to video games. Even the family pet got in on the digital act, as Sony unveiled the newest version of its AIBO robotic pooch.

run in online

Apple unveils its iTunes online music store, offering MP3 downloads from popular artists at 99¢ per song.
